If history is any indication the 2006 men's tennis season at the University of North Carolina should indeed be an exciting one.

Beginning with the 1989 season, the Tar Heel men's tennis program has had winning seasons in 15 of the past 17 years and has earned an invitation to the NCAA Tournament in 13 of those 17 seasons.

It's no coincidence that just a year after a 1988 season in which Carolina finished 0-7 in ACC dual matches Sam Paul would arrive the in Chapel Hill as an assistant to head coach Allen Morris and the UNC program would move in a most positive direction in the process.

Eventually, Sam Paul took over as the Carolina head coach in 1993 after Allen Morris' retirement from coaching. As the head coach Paul has continued to shape teams which annually produce winning records and earn NCAA Tournament bids.

Carolina has been a beacon of consistent excellence during the 16 years Paul has served as an assistant and head coach but ironically the seasons in the even-numbered years have always produced results that are a slight cut above the accomplishments in the odd-numbered years.

There is probably no logical reason for this pattern other than the whims of fate. But if the trend holds true then the 2006 UNC men's tennis team could be a special squad indeed.

This team certainly has the makeup to make such a stellar campaign a reality. Despite losing singles starters Geoff Boyd (No. 3) and Jonathan Janda (No. 5) to graduation, the Tar Heels enter the season as an experienced team with a strong senior class of four talented individuals.

Three of the four members of the senior class have a strong likelihood to play at the top three positions in the singles lineup so Carolina should present opponents with a lineup that will be battle-hardened, cagy and veteran in its nature.

"Going into the 2006 season we are led by three seniors who have played a lot during their careers here so we know we have a lot of experience at the top of our lineup," says head coach Sam Paul.

"Nevertheless, we know the ACC this season is the best it has ever been on an overall basis and certainly the most competitive top to bottom it has ever been. Four teams go into the season ranked in the Top 15 in the nation and it is realistic that 11 of the 12 teams could earn NCAA bids and end up as teams ranked in the Top 40."

Further on down the lineup Carolina also returns a pair of underclassmen who both have significant starting experience while an outstanding freshman joins the squad and a cast of second-year players will be right in the thick of the intra-team competition to claim a spot in the lineup.

This team is dead set on improving on the accomplishments of the 2005 squad which were quite solid in their own right. The Tar Heels played an extraordinarily high number of close matches in 2005 with 10 of the last 15 matches of the season being decided with the winning team having only the four points necessary to clinch the team win.

A little good fortune in some of those close matches and Carolina could have parlayed a good season into a great season.

That statement is not meant to diminish the exploits of the 2005 squad in any manner. Overall UNC finished at 16-11 and in the process earned its sixth successive trip to the NCAA Tournament. In the final Intercollegiate Tennis Association ranking the Heels came in at the No. 34 spot.

Carolina was tough to play both at home and indoors as UNC compiled an 11-3 record in both of those areas. One of the highlights of the season came in the Atlantic Coast

Senior Raian Luchici

Conference Tournament when the Tar Heels made a strong run at a potential championship.

North Carolina had finished the regular season with a 4-6 mark in ACC dual matches with three of the six losses coming by razor-thin 4-3 margins. UNC tied for sixth in the ACC standings and was seeded No. 7 in the tournament. In the opening round of the tournament the Tar Heels advanced by defeating NC State 4-0. With the win UNC earned a chance to meet eighth-ranked Duke in the quarterfinals just nine days after the Blue Devils had thrashed the Tar Heels 7-0 at the Cone-Kenfield Tennis Center in the regular season meeting.

Carolina pulled off a stunning upset of the Blue Devils 4-2, UNC's first win over Duke since 1996 and the highest ranked opponent the Tar Heels had beaten since 1994. In the process Carolina became only the second team in history seeded seventh or lower to advance to the semifinals of the ACC Tournament. UNC's quest for the title ended the next day with a 4-2 loss to eventual NCAA quarterfinalist Florida State in the semifinals but that loss did not sully the outstanding effort of the team.

Despite the loss of two starters Carolina does return the kind of lineup which should be able to breed a successful atmosphere.

UNC returns seniors Raian Luchici, Brad Pomeroy and Derek Porter. In 2005, those three players manned the No. 1, No. 2 and No. 4 spots in the singles lineup and all had outstanding seasons. Luchici, who goes into this season ranked fifth nationally by the ITA in singles, finished 25-15 in singles in 2004-05 and had eight wins over nationally-ranked opponents during the year. He also earned an invitation to the singles phase of the NCAA Tournament.

Pomeroy had an outstanding season while playing with Geoff Boyd at No. 1 doubles. The duo finished the 2005 season with an overall doubles ledger of 26-12. Pomeroy and Porter played primarily at the No. 2 and No. 4 singles spots in the lineup last season, posting 18 and 21 singles wins, respectively.

Two other players with significant starting experience who return to Carolina this year are junior Sebastian Guejman and sophomore Benjamin Carlotti. Guejman played much of last season at No. 6 singles flight and ended the year with a 14-6 record. Carlotti spent most of his freshman year at the No. 5 singles spot where he posted a singles mark of 24-7, ranking only one win behind Luchici for the most wins on team. Both Luchici and Carlotti finished the season ranked by the ITA in singles with ratings of No. 56 and No. 109 respectively.

Much of the work in the preseason will center around the search to establish a No. 6 player for the singles lineup and how to configure the doubles teams to maximum advantage.

Luchici and Pomeroy currently play at No. 1 doubles and they are ranked No. 1 in the nation heading into the spring season after reaching at least the semifinals of two national ITA tournaments last fall. The rest of the doubles lineup will be sorted out as the season progresses.

There are a host of possibilities for the final spot in the singles lineup. Both freshman Taylor Fogleman and sophomore Will Plyler have earned a shot at the spot with their practice work but coach Paul has seven other returning letter winners who could make a serious run at nailing down the spot in the lineup.

"We're very excited about the level of competition we are likely to face this year and we look forward to competing against teams of this calibre on a regular basis," says head coach Sam Paul. "One of the keys for us will be to keep our team healthy. If we can do that we feel we have a lineup that can compete against anyone in the nation."

Sam Paul

Head Tennis Coach

188-106 at UNC

67-31 in ACC Matches

13th Season as Head Coach
at North Carolina

The University of North Carolina men's tennis program is led by one of the nation's best and brightest coaches, Sam Paul, a four-time Atlantic Coast Conference Coach of the Year selection, three-time Intercollegiate Tennis Association Mid-east Region Coach of the Year and three-time ITA National Coach of the Year finalist.

North Carolina's tradition of excellence in men's tennis continues under Paul, now in his 13th year as head coach of the Tar Heels and 17th year overall as a coach at the University. Paul ranks as the fourth winningest coach in ACC history in dual match wins in his career and is second in UNC history in that category behind only Don Skakle.

The 45-year-old native of Lancaster, S.C., has been uniting the winning reputation of UNC men's tennis with his adroit skills for coaching and recruiting since he was named the head coach in April 1993, making North Carolina one of the most respected programs in the nation. He holds a career head coaching record at UNC of 188-106, including a 67-31 mark in Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season dual matches. Twice since 2000 Paul has mentored student-athletes who have won the Patterson Medal as Carolina's outstanding senior student-athlete — Tripp school year.

Paul is also the only head men's tennis coach in the Atlantic Coast Conference to have tutored four players who have been ranked in the Top 500 in the world in men's singles — Don Johnson (UNC Class of '90), David Caldwell (UNC Class of '96), Tripp Phillips (UNC Class of '00) and Nick Monroe (UNC Class of '04).

The late 1990s and early years of this decade were busy ones for Coach Paul as he took on extra duties as personal coach for UNC alumnus Don Johnson during his magnificent runs in doubles at Wimbledon and the U.S. Open. In that role, he became the only current college coach to coach a player ranked No. 1 in the world in the ATP men's doubles rankings. Paul accompanied Johnson, who now serves as an assistant coach for the Tar Heels, to a pair of Grand Slam titles and an appearance on the U.S. Davis Cup Team.

Paul, who had been an assistant coach for the Tar Heel program for four years from 1989-93, took over the reins from coach Allen Morris in May 1993. In 2002, Paul directed his Tar Heels to a 19-6 dual match record and the Atlantic Coast Conference championship, the 25th in school history. Carolina has been invited to the NCAA Tournament in 13 of the past 14 seasons while Paul has been an assistant and head coach in Chapel Hill. Only once in Paul's head coaching tenure have the Tar Heels failed to make the NCAA Tournament field.

Paul has been repeatedly rewarded for his coaching ability as he was selected the Atlantic Coast Conference Coach of the Year in 1996, 2000, 2002 and 2004. The 1996 Tar Heels amassed a 21-5 overall record, went undefeated in the ACC regular season at 8-0 and saw five players complete individual 20-win seasons. Senior David Caldwell received ACC Player of the Year honors for the third consecutive season and won the No. 1 singles title for the third straight season — both league firsts.

The 2000 Tar Heels compiled an 18-6 mark, reached the NCAA Tournament regional finals and had three players earn ACC flight championship honors. Senior Tripp Phillips earned All-America distinction as he advanced to the NCAA quarterfinals.

In 2002, the Tar Heels had one of their best seasons in recent memory as UNC went 19-6 overall against a brutal schedule and won the ACC title for the first time since 1992 with a stirring 4-3 championship match victory over Georgia Tech. In 2004, UNC surprised much of the college tennis world by rising from a No. 50 pre-season ranking to share the ACC regular-season championship and earn the No. 11 seed in the NCAA Tournament. The Tar

Coach Paul's Highlights at North Carolina

*Paul enters his 17th season at North Carolina. He came to Chapel Hill as an assistant coach in 1989 and became head coach in 1993.

*Paul earned his 100th career victory by defeating No. 23 Notre Dame on March 25, 2000.

*Paul ranks fourth in career ACC dual match victories behind only Don Skakle, Chuck Kriese and Jay Lapidus.

*North Carolina has finished in the top three in the ACC standings in 13 of the 16 years Paul has coached here.

*In 13 of the last 15 years, Carolina's #1 singles player has earned All-America honors and/or participated in the NCAA singles championship.

Heels finished 23-5 overall and hosted an NCAA regional for the first time since the field expanded to 64. Nick Monroe became the fourth NCAA singles quarterfinalist coached by Paul, joining Roland Thornqvist, David Caldwell and Tripp Phillips in that category.

Paul came to Chapel Hill in September 1989 after serving as the Director of Tennis and the head men's and women's tennis coach at the University of Richmond for two years. At Richmond, he won honors as the Colonial Athletic Association's Women's Tennis Coach of the Year in both 1988 and 1989. His women went 11-11 in his first year at the helm, finishing third in the CAA, and improved to 14-7 in 1989, which was good for second place in the CAA. The 1989 team was also ranked in the region's Top 10.

Working with a non-scholarship men's program at Richmond, Paul led the Spiders to a 12-9 mark and third-place league finish in his second year.

During Paul's four years as the Carolina assistant, UNC was 82-29 overall in dual matches, 26-3 in Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season dual matches and 10-2 in ACC Tournament dual matches. Paul assisted on teams which won ACC Tournament titles in 1990 and 1992, were the ACC Tournament runnersup in 1991 and 1993 and won the conference's regular-season championship in 1991 and 1992. All Phillips in 2000 and Nick Monroe in 2004.

Besides their success on the court, Tar Heel tennis teams under Coach Paul also excel in the classroom. The UNC men's tennis team had the highest composite grade point average of any men's athletic team at Carolina during the 2003-04 school year and again during the 2004-05 four teams Paul worked with at Carolina as an assistant to Morris were ranked in the Top 25 in the nation by the Intercollegiate Tennis Association.

The 1992 Carolina team reached the quarterfinals of the NCAA Tournament and the 1993 squad was in the NCAA Tournament Final 16. Since Paul took over as UNC's head coach the Tar Heels have made the NCAA Tournament field every year from 1994 through 2005 with the exception of 1999.

During his time at Carolina, the Tar Heels have also had remarkable success in ITA Grand Slam events. A Carolina player has competed in the national singles indoor competition nine of the past 15 years, most recently Raian Luchici in 2005. In 1993, former assistant coach and two-time All-America selection Roland Thornqvist won the ITA Indoors title in Minneapolis, Minn.

In 2004, Geoff Boyd and Brad Pomeroy won the Mideast Region doubles championship and advanced to the quarterfinals of the national indoors. Pomeroy and Raian Luchici reached the finals of the 2005 All-American Championships and semifinals of the ITA National Indoors and earned the No. 1 collegiate ranking in doubles in the 2006 preseason in the process.

In addition to his collegiate coaching experience, Paul has worked with ATP Tour players J.J. Jackson, Don Johnson and Chris Woodruff, all of whom trained in Chapel Hill.

Paul graduated from Presbyterian College in Clinton, S.C., in May 1983 with a Bachelor of Science degree in applied psychology. He also played tennis for the Blue Hose for two years. In addition, he has a 1981 Associate of Arts degree with a concentration in business from Anderson (S.C.) College. He played tennis there as a freshman and sophomore.

In addition to coaching at Richmond, Paul also served as an assistant coach for the tennis teams at Trinity University in San Antonio, Texas for one year and at the University of South Carolina for three years.

Paul is also beginning his 17th year as camp director of the annual Carolina Tar Heel Tennis Camps.

Don Johnson

Assistant Coach
Eighth season at
North Carolina
(North Carolina, 1990)

Don Johnson is in his eighth season as the Tar Heels' assistant coach and his third year as the chief assistant after serving as a volunteer coach for five years.

Johnson's impact on the program was witnessed almost immediately in 2004. He helped mold a Tar Heel team that was ranked No. 50 in the preseason into a unit which won a share of the Atlantic Coast Conference regular season title and went on to earn the No. 11 seed in the NCAA Tournament. The Tar Heels were 23-5 overall in his first full-time year on the staff.

Johnson had retired in 2003 from an active playing career which saw him compete as one of the world's top doubles players for a period of nearly 15 years.

In 2001, Johnson teamed with Jared Palmer to win the doubles title at Wimbledon, finish as the runnerup team at the U.S. Open and represent the U.S. Davis Cup Team. Palmer and Johnson competed for the U.S. in Davis Cup play against India in Winston-Salem, N.C. in October 2001. In 2002, he teamed with Palmer to reach the semifinals at Wimbledon and the quarterfinals at the U.S. Open.

Johnson surpassed the $1 million dollar mark in earnings in 2001 and in that year he had his most successful season, winning five ATP Tour Master's Series titles. Overall, he posted a career best doubles record of 40-10 during 2001.

Johnson's biggest victories included the 2000 Wimbledon Mixed Doubles title, his first grand slam title, and the 2000 World Doubles Championships, considered professional tennis' fifth major.

In the World Doubles Championship, Johnson teamed with South Africa's Piet Norval. Johnson's other victories in 2000 were Mexico City (with Byron Black), Estoril (Portugal), Nottingham (England) and Basel (Switzerland). In June 2000 Johnson teamed with Kimberly Po to win the Wimbledon Mixed Doubles Championship 6-2, 7-6 over Australia's Lleyton Hewitt and Kim Clijsters. It was the first grand slam title of any kind for Po and Johnson who lost the U.S. Open final the year before in mixed doubles play.

Johnson finished his career with 23 ATP Tour career doubles titles. The majority of Johnson's early success was achieved with fellow American Francisco Montana. Johnson and Montana advanced to the quarterfinals of the French Open in 1996 and 1998 and the semifinals of the 1998 World Doubles Championships. In 1998, Johnson's doubles ranking rose to No. 6 in the world.

Johnson's first doubles wins came in 1996 at Amsterdam and at Mexico City. When he retired he was the oldest player in the year-end Top 10 of the doubles rankings at the age of 34. All in all, he finished his career with total prize money of $2,288,944.

Johnson is a 1990 graduate of the University of North Carolina. He played tennis at UNC for four years after growing up in Bethlehem, Pa. As a senior at Carolina, he was named first team All-Atlantic Coast Conference and he played No. 2 singles on a team which won the Tar Heels' first Atlantic Coast Conference championship in 12 years.

After earning the Sportsmanship Award at the 1986 U.S. Tennis Association National Junior Championships, Johnson matriculated at Carolina to begin an outstanding career, culminating with a degree in economics. He was married on May 21, 1995 to his wife Krista Johnson, who is a resident doctor at UNC Hospitals.

Johnson turned professional in 1992. He was coached in the professional ranks by both Sam Paul and Juan Barcelo.

Don and Krista Johnson built a home in Chapel Hill while Don was still playing professionally. It was always his dream to return to Carolina on a full-time basis even as he became one of the most accomplished doubles players in the world.

Don and Krista are the parents of Garlynd Love Johnson, born on May 10, 2004.

The Southern Conference decided a sole singles champion throughout Carolina's membership in the league. The Southern Conference decided a sole doubles championship team throughout Carolina's membership in the league. In addition to those listed, Carolina also won doubles championships in 1922 and 1923 but research has been unable to attach the names of the champions to those years. The Atlantic Coast Conference decided sole singles and doubles champions from 1954 to 1964. Beginning in 1965, ACC champions were determined by flight. The ACC discontinued the practice of naming flight champions following the 2001 season. It now merely names an All-ACC Team.

Bitsy Grant, 1931

When asked near the end of his tenure in 1955 to rate the best players at Carolina all-time, the veteran Tar Heel tennis coach John Kenfield chose Bitsy Grant to head up the list. Bryan "Bitsy" Grant came to Carolina as a freshman in 1929 and was named an All-America in 1931. Ranked as high as No. 3 nationally in men's singles during his post-Carolina career, Grant played on four U.S. Davis Cup teams and won three U.S. Tennis Association national clay court championships. Grant's leadership helped the 1931 team finish undefeated and capture the Southern Conference title.

Bitsy Grant and Wilmer Hines

Wilmer Hines, 1933

Carolina's top player in 1933, Wilmer Hines won the Southern Conference singles title and combined with Lenoir Wright to win the doubles crown. He also was named an All-America that year. The Tar Heels, in fact, won the Southern Conference crown every year of Hines' career at Carolina, never losing a match and tying only one for a combined overall record of 52-0-1. After leaving Carolina, Hines went on to win the Italian Open championship. A great all-around athlete, Hines also lettered in basketball three times and captained the 1933 UNC basketball squad.

Vic Seixas, 1948

Regarded by most as the greatest player in Carolina's tennis history, Vic Seixas was also one of the outstanding players in American tennis history. Seixas was named an All-America in 1948 and went on to an impressive professional career. Seixas won the Wimbledon singles championship in 1953 and also won the U.S. Open championship in 1954. While at Carolina, Seixas, who played under the legendary coach John Kenfield from 1947-49, won the Southern Conference singles title in 1948 and finished as the runner-up in both 1947 and 1949. He teamed with Clark Taylor to capture the league doubles crown in 1949. In 1948, he entered the NCAA Tournament as the top seed and won five matches in the tournament before dropping the championship match to the No. 1 ranked player. That same year Seixas, who came to Carolina after four years of Army Air Force duty during World War II, was the seventh-ranked men's singles player in the U.S. amateur ranks. By 1952, he had attained the No. 1 singles ranking among Americans. The 55 Davis Cup singles matches that he played in were the most of any American player in history and his 75 U.S. Open men's singles victories were a record that stood until broken by Jimmy Connors in 1985.

George Sokol, 1963

Named an All-America in singles as a junior in 1963, George Sokol had a distinguished tennis career at Carolina. He was the Tar Heels' first dominant presence in the Atlantic

George Sokol

Coast Conference. From 1954 to 1964, the ACC chose a sole singles champion before going to individual flight titles. Sokol won three of those titles, capturing the crowns in 1962, 1963 and 1964. Sokol also won an outright ACC doubles title in 1963, with partner Keith Stoneman.

Freddie McNair, 1970-73

The only Carolina player to win All-America honors in every one of his four years in Chapel Hill, Freddie McNair ranks as one of Carolina's finest players ever. While at Carolina, McNair combined with Richie McKee to reach the NCAA doubles finals in 1973. In the Atlantic Coast Conference, he won three individual singles titles in 1970, 1971 and 1972 and three doubles titles, one with Joe Dorn in 1970 and two with McKee in 1971 and 1972. He went on to have a distinguished professional career, attaining the world's #1 doubles ranking with teammate Sherwood Stewart in the late 1970s.

Freddie McNair

Richie McKee, 1972-1974

A native of Charlotte, N.C., Richie McKee won much fame playing collegiate tennis, earning All-America honors as a sophomore, junior and senior. The son of teaching pro Dick McKee, who reached the finals at Wimbledon after a career at the University of Miami, McKee's play improved with each year he spent at Carolina. He became known as much for his quiet on-the-court manner as for his tennis talent. A team captain, McKee and doubles partner Freddie McNair reached the NCAA doubles finals in 1973, and the two won the 1971 and 1972 Atlantic Coast Conference doubles titles. In singles, McKee won two ACC titles, at No. 4 in 1971 and No. 3 in 1972.

CAROLINA MEN'S TENNIS: ALL-AMERICAS

Billy Brock, 1976

A Don Skakle protege, Billy Brock was a member of four Atlantic Coast Conference championship teams at Carolina and was an All-America in singles in 1976. Brock, known for his baby-faced appearance and slight build, was a powerhouse on the court and a member of North Carolina teams that lost only eight dual matches in his four-year career. He played on teams which compiled four undefeated seasons in the ACC. The Tar Heels finished as high as seventh in 1974 in the national polls. Brock won two ACC individual flight singles titles, taking the championship at No. 3 in 1974 and at No. 1 in 1975. He also took home a doubles title in 1975 with partner Tommy Dixon. One of the Norfolk, Va. native's greatest wins was a second-round 1974 NCAA Tournament upset of 12th-seeded Steve Mott of UCLA. Down a set, Brock, who was only a freshman, went on to win nine straight games against the favored Bruin, and won the final sets 6-0 and 6-1.

Jeff Chambers, 1985

The only Carolina player in history to receive an NCAA singles invitation each of his four years as a Tar Heel, Chambers competed in the NCAA Tournament in 1984, 1985, 1986 and 1987. He was named an All-America in singles in 1985 after capturing the ACC individual flight championship at No. 2 singles and going 26-8 overall. Chambers also played in the NCAA Tournament in doubles three times, missing only during the 1986 season. The St. Petersburg, Fla. native was a three-time All-Atlantic Coast Conference selection. He enjoyed his highest national ranking in doubles with partner Wayne Hearn in 1985, as the pair reached the No. 24 spot in the ITA poll.

Bryan Jones, 1992

One of three Carolina players in history to be named the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament's Most Valuable Player, Bryan Jones received that honor and many more in 1992 as the senior tri-captain led the Tar Heels to one of the school's most successful seasons, a season in which Carolina set a school record for team wins as UNC finished 25-5. Jones also was named the ACC Player of the Year in 1992 and helped lead the team to the 1992 ACC Tournament Championship. It was the second ACC team championship for UNC during Jones' tenure as Carolina also won the coveted trophy in 1990 when Jones was a sophomore. The Tar Heels finished the 1992 conference regular season undefeated at 8-0 and placed four players on the All-ACC team, including Jones, who also earned the honor in 1990. The Kings Mountain, N.C., native was named an All-America selection in singles after finishing with a 35-7 overall record. He was named the ITA Region II Volvo Tennis/Senior Player of the Year and reached the second round of the NCAA Tournament. Jones, who also won the flight No. 2 ACC singles title in 1992, was a member of a senior class that helped the Tar Heels reach the quarterfinals of the NCAA Tournament and finish eighth nationally in the ITA poll, the best finish for Carolina since 1974. Over four years as a Tar Heel, Jones helped the team reach the championship match of the ACC Tournament each year.

Bryan Jones

Chris Mumford, 1992

A member of the 1992 Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament championship team, Chris Mumford was one of three Tar Heels to be named All-Americans on that squad — the most of any Carolina team in history. Mumford had a spectacular season in 1992, capturing All-America honors in doubles with teammate Roland Thornqvist after completing a 15-7 season at the No. 1 doubles position. The pair were quarterfinalists at the NCAA Championships and finished the season ranked 14th in the ITA poll. Mumford garnered All-ACC honors in 1992, the second such honor in his career, as the Richmond, Va. native captured the flight No. 5 ACC singles title with a 7-1 conference record. Over his four-year career, Mumford was a member of a senior class which helped lead the Tar Heels to an 81-29 overall record and a 24-4 record in the ACC. After being unranked as freshmen, that senior class led Carolina to national rankings of 24th in their sophomore year, 17th in their junior year and eighth in their senior year. Those seniors also led Carolina in 1990 to its first ACC crown since 1978. The 1992 team's NCAA Tournament bid was also the first since 1978 for the Tar Heels as that squad went on to become quarterfinalists nationally and set a school record with 25 wins.

Roland Thornqvist, 1992-1993

One of the most accomplished tennis player ever to wear Carolina Blue, Roland Thornqvist was the No. 1 singles and No. 1 doubles player at Carolina for three straight years. The Farsta, Sweden native was named an All-America in both singles and doubles by the ITA in 1992 and 1993. His greatest accomplishment, however, was winning the Rafael Osuna Sportsmanship Award in both 1992 and 1993. He was the first player in the history of college tennis to win the prestigious honor twice. As a junior, he also won the Region II Arthur Ashe Jr./Head Sportsmanship Award. In 1993, he captured the singles title in the Rolex/ITA National Indoor Championships, one of the collegiate grand slam events; was named to the Rolex Collegiate All-Star Team; was the ITA Region II Senior Player of the Year and the Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year. Thornqvist was the ACC champion at No. 1 singles in both his sophomore and senior years and he won the No. 1 doubles crown as a senior with Daryl Wyatt. A three-time All-ACC selection, Thornqvist co-captained the Tar Heel team as a senior and qualified for the NCAA Tournament in singles three years and in doubles twice. He was a quarterfinalist in singles in both 1992 and 1993, and in doubles in 1992. After spending a year on the ATP Tour following graduation from Carolina in 1993, Thornqvist was an assistant coach for the Tar Heels in 1995 and 1996. He left the program to become the head women's tennis coach at the University of Kansas, but returned to the North Carolina tennis program in 1998 as the head coach of the women's team for three seasons. He is currently the women's coach at Florida where he has led the Gators to an NCAA championship.

Roland Thornqvist

Daryl Wyatt, 1993

Although he spent only one year as a member of the Tar Heel tennis team, Washington, D.C. native Daryl Wyatt made his time in a Carolina uniform count. Wyatt was superb in doubles with partner Roland Thornqvist when Wyatt was a freshman in 1993. The pair went undefeated in Atlantic Coast Conference play that season, going 8-0 against conference foes on a team and finished 24-6 overall. In the process Wyatt earned All-America honors from the ITA. Wyatt and Thornqvist also captured the ACC individual doubles title at the No. 1 position, and qualified for NCAA doubles competition, advancing to the second round. Wyatt was 32-11 overall in singles play and finished ACC singles competition at 6-2.

David Caldwell, 1994-1995

Two-time All-America David Caldwell left a legacy at Carolina that will be difficult to match by future Tar Heels. The Richmond, Va. native came to UNC as one of the most decorated junior tennis stars in the country, having been ranked in the top five nationally. At North Carolina, he continued his winning ways, becoming the first Atlantic Coast Conference men's tennis player in history to earn ACC Player of the Year honors three times, taking the award in 1994, 1995 and 1996. Caldwell was named an ITA All-America in singles as both a sophomore and a junior and was a doubles All-America with partner Brint Morrow as a junior. Caldwell was 16-0 in ACC singles play as a junior and senior and is the only player to ever win three individual ACC flight titles at No. 1 singles. He won the 1995 Rafael Osuna Sportsmanship Award and was the Region II Head/Arthur Ashe Jr. Sportsmanship Award recipient. The 1996 Region II Men's Tennis Player of the Year, Caldwell received NCAA singles invitations in 1994, 1995 and 1996 and was an NCAA quarterfinalist in 1995. A three-time All-ACC selection, he compiled a 116-41 (.737) record over his four years as a Tar Heel and finished his ACC career with a 32-5 (.865) record in singles and a 27-10 (.730) record in doubles. Caldwell, a 1996 Carolina graduate, was both the 1993 Region II ITA Rookie Player of the Year and the 1994 Penn/ITA National Player to Watch.

David Caldwell

Brint Morrow, 1995

A consistently strong performer for the Tar Heels over his four years in Chapel Hill, Brint Morrow was named All-

Brint Morrow

America in doubles in 1995 with partner David Caldwell, the tandem having gone 26-10 over the season while receiving an NCAA doubles invitation. A 1996 Carolina graduate whose father played tennis at Carolina in the 1960s, Morrow was a three-time All-Atlantic Coast Conference selection. He won three individual ACC singles flight championships and one doubles championship. Morrow captured the flight No. 3 doubles title with Caldwell and the flight No. 5 singles crown in 1993 as a freshman, the flight No. 2 singles title as a sophomore, and he went undefeated in conference play in 1995 to win the flight No. 3 singles title as a senior. He also was the recipient of the 1995 Blue/Gray Classic Sportsmanship Award after competing in that prestigious tournament in Montgomery, Ala.

Tripp Phillips, 2000

An intense competitor and valued team leader, Tripp Phillips of Charlotte, N.C. earned All-America status his senior season. After returning from a medical redshirt campaign, Phillips had an outstanding senior season, posting a stellar 25-6 singles record at the No.1 singles position. Phillips collected impressive victories over nationally No.1 ranked Daniel Anderson and No. 3 Shoun Madden that season. Phillips' intense leadership carried the Tar Heels to a second place ACC finish and a No. 16 national ranking. Phillips' dominating 12-2 record against ACC competition earned him runnerup honors at No. 1 singles. However, Phillips saved his best performance of the year for last as he advanced to the quarterfinals of the NCAA Championships in singles. Phillips' performance elevated him in the ITA rankings as he finished 2000 ranked No. 12 nationally in singles. Phillips' career and character were honored as he received the prestigious Patterson Medal and the John Van Nostrand Award. He and UNC soccer player Lorrie Fair won the 2000 Patterson Medals. He was the first tennis player so honored since Vic Seixas in 1950.

Nick Monroe, 2004

A native of Olathe, Kan., Nick Monroe received All-America honors from the Intercollegiate Tennis Association in 2004, the first UNC All-America in four years. Monroe won the Patterson Medal in 2004 as UNC's outstanding senior men's student-athlete and he reached the quarterfinals of the NCAA Tournament in singles as a senior as well. A three-time All-ACC selection, Monroe finished his UNC singles career with 100 wins, the second most in Tar Heel history behind David Caldwell's 116 wins. As a senior Monroe won the Jon Van Nostrand Award from the ITA, receiving a grant to pursue his professional tennis career. He had his best season as a senior when he finished No. 21 in the ITA singles and No. 17 in the ITA doubles rankings. Monroe was the captain of the 2004 Tar Heel team. He played on four Tar Heel teams which played in the NCAA Tournament and he was a standout on UNC's 2002 ACC championship squad.

The University of North Carolina men's tennis program began the decade of the 1990s in grand style and the success has carried over into the New Millennium as well.

Over the course of the past 16 seasons, the Tar Heels have claimed six Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season or tournament championships (1990, 1991, 1992, 1996, 2002, 2004); earned eight final Top 25 national rankings from the Intercollegiate Tennis Association (1990, 1991, 1992, 1993, 1994, 1996, 2000, 2004); and merited 13 spots in the NCAA Tournament field (1992, 1993, 1994, 1995, 1996, 1997, 1998, 2000, 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005). The 2004 squad received the school's highest seed ever in the NCAA Tournament at No. 11. The Tar Heels hosted an NCAA regional in 2004 for the first time since the tournament went to its current 64-team format in 1999.

The results of the past 16 years have been cause for celebration for Tar Heel head coach Sam Paul and his players. Carolina's proud tennis program regained momentum in the 1990s similar to that from its early years in the nascent decades of the 20th century. It seems only appropriate that the first decade of the 21st century match the accomplishments long associated with the sport of tennis in Chapel Hill.

Carolina has always had an especially rich tradition in the sport of tennis, featuring a long list of great coaches, players and teams. Over the past 98 years, since the first team was fielded in 1908, UNC teams have compiled a phenomenal won-loss record that would be difficult to rival in all of college athletics.

The Tar Heels' overall dual-match record stands at 1,373-342-8, a winning percentage of .799. It was during the 2002 season that North Carolina reached the point in its history where it had 1,000 more wins than it had losses, any amazing feat of long-term excellence. The milestone will come on February 9, 2002 when UNC defeated West Virginia 7-0 at the Cone-Kenfield Tennis Center. The win gave the Tar Heels 1,000 more wins in history than losses for the first time as UNC's record stood 1,307-307-8 at the end of that day. Going into the 2006 season, UNC teams have won 1,031 matches more than they have lost.

Since the first Tar Heel team was fielded in the spring of 1908, 82 of 98 North Carolina teams have posted winning records, five have had break even seasons and only eight have had losing records and even one of those was good enough to qualify for the NCAA Tournament. During three of 98 seasons, the University fielded no team at all and in only five of the eight losing seasons did the team actually play more than two matches on its entire schedule, finishing 3-4 in 1945, 8-9 in 1957, 14-16 in 1986, 11-14 in 1999 and 11-12 in 2003. Nineteen of the 93 teams have finished their campaigns undefeated, the latest in 1970 with an 18-0 mark. During the late 1930s and early 1940s, Carolina teams put together a 67-match winning streak, a collegiate record in its time which was broken by William & Mary in 1949.

Twenty-one Carolina teams have finished the season ranked among the nation's Top 25 teams, topped by a tie for third place at both the 1947 and 1948 NCAA Championships. The University of North Carolina also played host to the 71st National Collegiate Tennis Championships in 1955 on the Campus Courts in Chapel Hill. Since the NCAA abandoned flight play and went to a team tournament format in 1977, Carolina has made the NCAA field on 15 occasions — in 1977, 1978, 1992, 1993, 1994, 1995, 1996, 1997, 1998, 2000, 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004 and 2005.

Success in the Atlantic Coast Conference has also been the rule of the day during Carolina's vaunted tennis history. Since the conference's formation during the summer of 1953, Tar Heel teams have won a total of 25 league championships, including 23 outright crowns. In fact, in 52 years of Atlantic Coast Conference competition, the Tar Heels have finished outside of the upper division of the league standings only five times and have been either first or second in the standings in 38 of those 51 years. The Tar Heels' cumulative regular-season dual-match ACC record stands at an amazing 288-75, a winning percentage of .793. Carolina players have also won 86 ACC singles championships and 37 doubles titles.

The Birth of Tar Heel Tennis

The roots of tennis competition at the University of North Carolina date back to 1884 when the University Tennis Club was founded. In 1894, the club began intercollegiate competition in the sport. It was not until 1908, however, that letters were first awarded to the players and the sport was granted varsity status at the University. From 1908 through 1927, the team functioned without a head coach and in 1911, 1915 and 1919 no team was fielded at all. Beginning in 1920, Tar Heel teams have faced outside competition for 86 successive years.

Program continuity kicked in as of the 1927 season as John Kenfield arrived as head coach and Tar Heel tennis fortunes began to soar quickly. Kenfield answered an advertisement placed by the University Athletic Association in the American Lawn Tennis Journal. The ad sought Carolina's first full-time tennis coach. Kenfield's decision to respond to the query proved to be a stroke of luck for Carolina and not a half-bad decision for himself.

Kenfield, then 35 years old, was working in Chicago as both a tennis instructor at the Lake Shore Country Club in suburban Glencoe, Ill., and as a vice president of the Curtiss Candy Company, an enterprise he'd helped organize in the Windy City. While at Curtiss Candy Company, Kenfield named the Baby Ruth candy bar, one of the biggest sellers of all time, as well as the Butterfinger bar. The young candy company wanted a catchy name for its new confectionery treat featuring chocolate and peanuts to compete with the popular O'Henry bar of its leading business competitor. Babe Ruth was then at the height of his baseball career with the New York Yankees and Kenfield wrote the famous Bambino, asking for his permission to name the candy bar after him. Ruth sent back a royalty figure which the fledgling company couldn't afford. Kenfield then suggested "Baby Ruth" as an alternate name because no royalties would have been involved. The name was adopted, the candy bar was a smash hit with the American populace, Curtiss made millions and the rest, as they say, is history. Baby Ruth and Butterfinger candy bars are still enormously popular fare

Nick Monroe and Don Johnson

80 years later.

Kenfield's first year as head coach was 1928 and until his retirement after the 1955 season, his teams wrote a rather remarkable success story during his 28-year coaching tenure. Ten of his 28 teams finished their dual match seasons unbeaten and his overall coaching record was 434-30-2 for a remarkable winning percentage of .933. His teams averaged a 16-1 record each year during his 28 seasons on the Hill. It was only appropriate that when the University built a new tennis facility in 1992 the naming honors on the complex should honor the founder of the program, Kenfield.

Conference team championships on 15 occasions — 1930, 1931, 1932, 1933, 1936, 1937, 1939, 1940, 1941, 1942, 1943, 1944, 1950, 1951 and 1953. Kenfield also coached 13 Southern Conference individual singles champions and 13 doubles teams which won league titles. Prior to Kenfield's arrival on campus, Carolina also won Southern Conference doubles titles in 1922 and 1923, giving the school 15 doubles championships in all.

Ruling the Roost in the Southern Conference

Carolina also dominated tennis in the Southern Conference, beginning with the league's founding prior to the 1921-22 school year and running through 1953 when the Atlantic Coast Conference was formed. The University of North Carolina was one of the seven founding members of the ACC. Under Kenfield, Carolina teams won Southern Conference team championships on 15 occasions — 1930, 1931, 1932, 1933, 1936, 1937, 1939, 1940, 1941, 1942, 1943, 1944, 1950, 1951 and 1953. Kenfield also coached 13 Southern Conference individual singles champions and 13 doubles teams which won league titles. Prior to Kenfield's arrival on campus, Carolina also won Southern Conference doubles titles in 1922 and 1923, giving the school 15 doubles championships in all.

Kenfield knew he was on campus. Once discovered, Grant blossomed quickly, being named an All-America selection in 1931. Ranked as high as No. 3 nationally in men's singles during his post-collegiate career, Grant played on four U.S. Davis Cup teams and won a trio of U.S. Tennis Association national clay court championships.

Grant and sophomore Wilmer Hines played together on Carolina's 1931 team, which finished undefeated and won the Southern Conference title. Two years later, it was Hines who succeeded Grant as UNC's top player, winning the Southern Conference singles title in 1933 and combining with Lenoir Wright to win the doubles crown the same year. Hines was also named an All-America that year. After playing at Carolina, Hines went on to win the Italian Open championship. Ironically, Hines was more than merely a great tennis player. He also lettered in basketball three times at Carolina and captained the 1933 UNC basketball squad.

In the late 1930s and early 1940s, Kenfield's top players included players like Ramsay Potts, Archie Henderson, Harris Everett and Zan Carver. Potts, who graduated in 1937 and was also a two-time letterman in basketball at Carolina, made the NCAA singles semifinals while at UNC. That was in 1936 when the National Intercollegiate Championships were held at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill. That same year, Potts was ranked No. 3 in the final national collegiate singles rankings.

Carolina was so dominant during that time in Southern Conference tennis battles under Kenfield's tutelage that in 1936, UNC had all four semifinalists in the Southern Conference Tennis Championships' singles competition.

Henderson, a native Chapel Hillian, swept the singles titles of four of the six tournaments in which he played during the 1940

The 1965 Tar Heels, undefeated at 20-0 and ACC champions

ate that when the University built a new tennis facility in 1992 the naming honors on the complex should honor the founder of the program, Kenfield.

Kenfield tutored some of the most accomplished players in Carolina tennis history. The first great player who came under Kenfield's tutelage was Bryan "Bitsy" Grant of Atlanta, Ga., who came to UNC as a freshman in 1929. Rumor has it that Grant was actually enrolled at Carolina for three months before season and in the process beat all of the top American players of the time with the exception of the legendary Jack Kramer. In 1940, Everett won the Southern Conference singles championship. A year later, he won the league doubles crown while teaming with M.P. Anthony.

Everett, who was also a native of Chapel Hill, improved his national ranking to 11th in 1940 after he beat both German Davis Cup star Henner Henkle and Welby Van Horn at the Forest Hills United States National Championships. In 1941, Carver gave up his Tar Heel football career to concentrate solely on tennis. He beat out Everett for the number one spot on the Carolina team and then downed his teammate Everett for the Southern Conference singles title. That same season, Carver lost a tough three-set match (7-5 in the third) to Joe Hunt, who would go on to claim the singles title that year at the U.S. Open in Forest Hills.

Seixas Becomes a Tennis Legend

Near the end of his coaching tenure, Kenfield was asked to pick the all-time Carolina tennis team up to that point. The veteran mentor chose Grant No. 1, Hines No. 3, Henderson No. 4, Carver No. 5 and Everett No. 6. The man in the second spot was the legendary Vic Seixas, an All-America selection in 1948. Seixas had a storybook career at Carolina, winning the Southern Conference singles title in 1948, finishing as the runnerup in both 1947 and 1949 and teaming with Clark Taylor to capture the league doubles crown in 1949. Seixas, a Philadelphia, Pa. native, came to the University after four years of Army Air Force duty during World War II. In 1948, Seixas entered the NCAA Tournament as the top seed. He won five matches in the tournament before dropping the championship match 6-4, 1-6, 7-5, 6-1 to Harry Likas of the University of San Francisco, who was then No. 1 in the national singles rankings, one spot ahead of Seixas. Seixas advanced farther in NCAA singles action than any other

Don Skakle

Tar Heel in history. The same year at the NCAA Championships, Seixas and Clark Taylor were seeded third in the doubles tournament despite their less impressive seventh-place standing in the national doubles rankings. The duo won a pair of matches before losing to the brother team of Evert and Evert from Notre Dame, 6-3, 6-8, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3 in the quarterfinals. During his senior year in 1949, Seixas was the seventh-ranked men's singles player in the U.S. amateur ranks.

Seixas went on to have a star-studded career after graduating from Carolina. By 1952, he had attained the No. 1 singles ranking among Americans and he won the Wimbledon singles championship in 1953 and the U.S. Open title in 1954. The 55 Davis Cup singles matches he played in were more than any American player in history and that record stood for decades. His 75 U.S. Open men's singles victories were a record that stood until broken by Jimmy Connors in 1985, almost 30 years after Seixas' heyday in the sport.

Skakle Leads UNC To Unequaled Success in the ACC

Carolina continued to have great teams during the 1950s. In the summer of 1953, UNC became a member of the Atlantic Coast Conference, joining six other schools as founding members in a league that grew from the original seven teams in 1953 to 12 teams in 2005.

From 1955-1959, four different men piloted the Tar Heel program as head coach. Kenfield retired after the 1955 season with Ham Strayhorn serving as the head coach in 1956 and Vladimir Cernik tapped as the head man in 1957 and 1958.

With Don Skakle's arrival as UNC's head coach in 1959, the second great era in North Carolina tennis began. A collegiate contemporary of Seixas who also played on UNC teams in the late 1940s, Skakle led his teams to total domination of the Atlantic Coast Conference during his 22 seasons as head coach. His teams won a total of 18 ACC titles, including 16 crowns outright. On nine occasions the Tar Heels finished among the nation's Top 25 teams. Overall, Skakle's teams had a 418-55 dual-match record in 22 seasons, including a 132-14 mark in the ACC.

Among Skakle's great players were George Sokol, who won a trio of ACC singles titles from 1962-64, while being named an All-America in his junior year; Freddie McNair, Carolina's only four-time first-team All-America selection, who won three ACC No. 1 doubles crowns and three ACC singles titles (two at No. 1 and one at No. 2); Richie McKee, McNair's doubles partner who was an All-America selection three times and the winner of two ACC singles championships and two league doubles crowns; and Billy Brock, a 1976 All-America who won a pair of conference crowns in both singles and doubles.

McNair probably ranks as Carolina's finest player since Seixas left campus in 1949 and before Roland Thornqvist and David Caldwell's arrival in the '90s. While at Carolina, McNair combined with McKee to reach the NCAA doubles finals in 1973 at Princeton, N.J., even though the duo had been upset in the finals of the ACC Tournament the same year. McNair went on to have a distinguished professional career, attaining the world's No. 1 doubles ranking with teammate Sherwood Stewart in the late 1970s. In fact, McNair won the 1976 French Open doubles title while teaming with Stewart.

Allen Morris Arrives In Chapel Hill

When Skakle passed away on the eve of the ACC Tournament in 1980, Carolina tennis suffered its first leadership void in over two decades. The University hired Allen Morris, a great tennis player in his own right, to become only the fifth head coach in school history. Morris was named ACC Coach of the Year three times during his tenure — in 1983, 1990 and 1992. During the 1984 campaign, UNC reached a major milestone when the school won its 1,000th dual match in history. The victory came in San Antonio, Texas, as the Tar Heels upset sixth-ranked Trinity 5-4.

Morris' top players included Jeff Chambers, Wayne Hearn, Don Johnson, Bryan Jones and Roland Thornqvist. An All-America in 1985, Chambers earned four NCAA Tournament singles invitations and three NCAA doubles bids. Hearn was the ACC Player of the Year in 1985 and he made the NCAA Tournament in both singles and doubles twice. Although he never made the NCAA Tournament, Johnson was a consistent player who was named the 1990 ACC Tournament Most Valuable Player after leading the Tar Heels to their first conference crown in 12 years. Johnson went on to have a distinguished doubles career in the professional ranks, winning several major tournaments and consistently being ranked in the Top 10 in the world in doubles. Johnson earned two Wimbledon doubles titles and a U.S. Davis Cup appearance before his retirement in 2003 from the professional ranks to become Carolina's assistant tennis coach.

A Stellar 1992 Season for the Tar Heels

Jones and Thornqvist helped lead the 1992 squad to remarkable success on the court. Thornqvist was named a first-team All-America in both singles and doubles, and Jones, a senior from Kings Mountain, N.C., took home All-America honors in singles as the 1992 Tar Heels set a school record for victories in a season during their 25-5 campaign. Carolina finished eighth in the final Intercollegiate Tennis Association poll and made the NCAA Tournament field for the first time since 1978, beating No. 8 TCU in the round of 16 before losing to third-seeded UCLA in the quarterfinals. Carolina also claimed both the ACC regular-season and tournament championships in 1992.

Jones was named ACC Player of the Year, Most Valuable Player of the ACC Tournament and Region II Senior Player of the Year in 1992, and he advanced to the second round of the NCAA Tournament. Thornqvist finished the season ranked seventh nationally in singles and he reached the quarterfinals of the NCAA Tournament in both singles and doubles, playing the latter with Chris Mumford, an All-America selection in his own right. Thornqvist also was honored with the Rafael Osuna Award given nationally for sportsmanship by the ITA.

That seemed only a prelude to Thornqvist's brilliant senior season. Finishing 36-6 in singles and 24-6 in doubles, the Swedish native was ranked fourth nationally in singles and 10th in doubles at the season's end. Thornqvist captained the 1993 UNC team to a 17th-place ITA poll ranking and to the Final 16 of the NCAA Tournament, beating Harvard in the first round of the tournament before falling to eventual NCAA champion Southern California in the round of 16.

Individually, Thornqvist won the Rafael Osuna Sportsmanship Award from the ITA for the second straight year, the first player in the history of college tennis to win the award more than once. He captured ACC titles at No. 1 singles and No. 1 doubles, was named to the All-ACC Team for the third straight year and was the ACC Player of the Year and the ITA Region II Senior Player of the Year.

As a senior, Thornqvist won the ITA national indoor singles championship, beating Georgia's Mike Sell in the finals at Minneapolis. He was also an NCAA Tournament singles quarterfinalist for the second straight season and he was named the MVP of both the H.E. Butt Championships and the Blue/Gray Championships.

Carolina's success has continued since Sam Paul took over for Allen Morris after the latter retired from coaching in 1993 to become athletic director at his alma mater, Presbyterian College.

Paul, who had been an assistant for four seasons under Morris, has led the Tar Heels to NCAA Tournament bids in 1994, 1995, 1996, 1997, 1998, 2000, 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004 and 2005. Carolina reached NCAA regional finals in 1994, 1996, 2000 and 2004 and was one win short in each case from reaching the tournament's Final 16. The school hosted an NCAA regional for the first time in school history in 2004 and received a program high No. 11 NCAA Tournament seed.

Paul has tutored several All-America players at Carolina, including David Caldwell, Brint Morrow, Tripp Phillips and Nick Monroe. Caldwell and Phillips were both outstanding singles players and both advanced far into the NCAA Tournament several times.

David Caldwell and Brint Morrow

Phillips reached the quarterfinals of the NCAA Tournament in 2000 and later that year he was named the winner of the Patterson Medal as Carolina's outstanding senior student-athlete. He was the first tennis player so named since Vic Seixas. Monroe, who Sam Paul acknowledges as one of the hardest-working players he ever coached, was an All-America in 2004, captured the Patterson Medal and reached the NCAA quarterfinals in singles.

Carolina has finished either first, second or third in the ACC standings in every year under Paul's tutelage with the exceptions of 1999, 2003 and 2005. The 2002 team, led by senior Marcio Petrone as tournament Most Valuable Player, won Carolina's 25th ACC championship in school history. Clemson and Duke are tied for the second most ACC championships in history with 11 each.

Carolina and the College Tennis Hall of Fame

Six Tar Heel tennis greats are enshrined in the Collegiate Tennis Hall of Fame in Athens, Ga. Vic Seixas was inducted in 1984, Bitsy Grant in 1985, John Kenfield in 1986, Don Skakle in 1991, Allen Morris in 1993 and Freddie McNair in 2001.

Carolina has had several inductees into the North Carolina Tennis Hall of Fame, the most recent being former All-ACC player and current assistant coach Don Johnson in 2006.

A great player and coach, Allen Morris was inducted into the North Carolina Tennis Hall of Fame, the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame, the Southern Tennis Hall of Fame and the Collegiate Tennis Hall of Fame.

CAROLINA MEN'S TENNIS: ACC TOP 50 HONOREES

Eleven University of North Carolina players were included on the list of the 50 greatest Atlantic Coast Conference men's tennis players of all time, announced in September 2002 by the ACC Office. UNC's representatives were diverse in nature and included nine All-America selections as well as six players who played professional tennis. Among the Tar Heel selections were professional doubles stars Freddie McNair and Don Johnson, the latter a two-time Wimbledon doubles titlist. All 11 players on the list won ACC championships either individually or as a team.

"I'm very proud of the large number of UNC student-athletes named to the team," said Sam Paul, whose tenure at UNC as assistant and head tennis coach dates to 1989. "This is an amazingly representative list and includes players who have been dominant forces both in the ACC and on the national scene."

Billy Brock, 1973-76, Norfolk, Va., was a Coach Don Skakle protege, a member of four Atlantic Coast Conference championship teams at Carolina and an All-America in singles in 1976. Brock was a powerhouse on the court and a member of North Carolina teams that lost only eight dual matches in his four-year career. Brock played on four squads which posted undefeated seasons in the ACC. Brock won two ACC individual flight singles titles (No. 3 in 1974 and No. 1 in 1975) and he also took home an ACC doubles title in 1975.

David Caldwell, 1993-96, Richmond, Va., was a two-time All-America. David Caldwell left a legacy at Carolina that will be difficult to match by any future Tar Heel. At North Carolina, he became the only Atlantic Coast Conference men's tennis player to earn ACC Player of the Year honors three times, winning the award in 1994, 1995 and 1996. Caldwell was named an ITA All-America in singles as both a sophomore and a junior, and was a doubles All-America with partner Brint Morrow as a junior. Caldwell was 16-0 in ACC singles in his junior and senior years combined. He is the only player to ever win three individual ACC flight titles at No. 1 singles. He also won the 1995 Rafael Osuna Sportsmanship Award. The 1996 Region II Men's Tennis Player of the Year, Caldwell received NCAA singles invitations in 1994, 1995 and 1996 and was an NCAA quarterfinalist in 1995. Caldwell was also a three-time All-ACC selection.

Jeff Chambers, 1984-87, St. Petersburg, Fla., is the only Carolina player in history to receive an NCAA singles invitation each of his four years as a Tar Heel. Chambers played in the NCAA Tournament in 1984, 1985, 1986 and 1987. He was named an All-America in singles in 1985 after capturing the ACC individual flight championship at No. 2 singles and going 26-8 in singles overall. Chambers also qualified for the NCAA Tournament in doubles three times, missing only in 1986. Chambers was a three-time All-Atlantic Coast Conference selection.

Don Johnson, 1987-90, Pittsburgh, Pa., distinguished himself as one of the world's best doubles players while a professional. In 2001, he teamed with Jared Palmer to win the doubles title at Wimbledon, reach the finals at the U.S. Open and represent the U.S. on the Davis Cup Team. Palmer and Johnson competed for the U.S. in Davis Cup play against India in Winston-Salem, N.C. Johnson is a 1990 graduate of the University of North Carolina. He played tennis at UNC for four years. As a senior he was named first team All-Atlantic Coast Conference and he played No. 2 singles on a team which won the Tar Heels' first Atlantic Coast Conference championship in 12 years.

Bryan Jones, 1989-92, Kings Mountain, N.C., is one of three Carolina players in history to be named the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament Most Valuable Player since that award came into existence. Jones received that honor and many more in 1992 as the senior tri-captain led the Tar Heels to one of the school's most successful seasons, setting a school record for team wins (25-5). Jones also was named the ACC Player of the Year in 1992 and helped lead the team to the 1992 ACC Tournament Championship. It was the second such championship for UNC during Jones' tenure, as Carolina also won the coveted trophy in 1990 when Jones was a sophomore. The Kings Mountain, N.C., native was named an All-America selection in singles after finishing with a 35-7 overall record. He was also named the ITA Region II Volvo Tennis/Senior Player of the Year in 1992.

Richie McKee, 1971-74, Charlotte, N.C., won a great deal of fame playing collegiate tennis, earning All-America honors as a sophomore, junior and senior. The son of teaching pro Dick McKee, who reached the finals at Wimbledon after a career at the University of Miami, McKee's play improved with each year he spent at Carolina. He became known as much for his quiet on-the-court manner as for his tennis talent. A team captain, McKee and doubles partner Freddie McNair reached the NCAA doubles finals in 1973 and the tandem won the 1971 and 1972 Atlantic Coast Conference No. 1 doubles titles. In singles, McKee won two ACC titles — No. 4 in 1971 and No. 3 in 1972.

Freddie McNair, 1970-73, Chevy Chase, Md., is the only Carolina player to win All-America honors each of his four years in Chapel Hill. McNair probably ranks as Carolina's finest player in history behind Vic Seixas. While at Carolina, McNair combined with Richie McKee to reach the NCAA doubles final in 1973. In the Atlantic Coast Conference, he won three individual singles titles (1970, 1971, 1972) and three doubles titles, one with Joe Dorn in 1970 and two with McKee in 1971 and 1972. He went on to have a distinguished professional career, attaining the world's No. 1 doubles ranking with teammate Sherwood Stewart in the late 1970s.

O.H. Parrish, 1963-65, Richmond, Va., played on three ACC championship teams for Carolina in the mid 1960s. In 1965, he won the Atlantic Coast Conference championship at No. 1 singles. He was the Atlantic Coast Conference champion in doubles in 1964 while playing with Ted Hoehn. In 1965, he captured the ACC championship at No. 1 doubles playing with Bronson Van Wyck.

Tripp Phillips, 1996-2000, Charlotte, N.C., was an intense competitor and valued team leader. Phillips earned All-America status his senior season. After returning from a medical redshirt, Phillips had an outstanding senior campaign, posting a stellar 25-6 singles record at the No. 1 singles position. However, Phillips saved his best performance of the year for the last as he advanced to the quarterfinals of the NCAA Championships. Phillips' performance elevated him in the ITA rankings at season's end as he finished 2000 ranked No. 12 nationally in singles. Phillips' career and character as he received the prestigious John Van Nostrand Award from the ITA. He was the first UNC tennis player to win the Patterson Medal as the team's outstanding senior student-athlete since Vic Seixas in 1950.

George Sokol, 1962-64, Bryn Mawr, Pa., was named an All-America in singles as a junior in 1963. He was one of the Tar Heels' first dominant presences in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Sokol won three of ACC individual singles titles (1962, 1963, 1964). Sokol also won an ACC doubles title in 1963 with partner Keith Stoneman.

Roland Thornqvist, 1991-93, Farsta, Sweden, was named an All-America in both singles and doubles by the ITA in 1992 and 1993. His greatest accomplishment, however, was winning the ITA's Rafael Osuna Sportsmanship Award in both 1992 and 1993. He was the first player in the history of college tennis to win the prestigious honor twice. In 1993, he captured the singles title in the Rolex/ITA National Indoor Championships, one of the collegiate grand slams. That same year he was named to the Rolex Collegiate All-Star Team, was the ITA Region II Senior Player of the Year and the Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year. Thornqvist was the ACC champion at No. 1 singles in both his sophomore and senior years and he won the No. 1 doubles crown as a senior. A three-time All-ACC selection, Thornqvist qualified for the NCAA Tournament in singles three years and in doubles twice. He was a quarterfinalist in singles in both 1992 and 1993 and in doubles in 1992.

CONE-KENFIELD TENNIS CENTER: CAROLINA MEN'S TENNIS

In keeping with the University of North Carolina's tradition of offering quality facilities for its student-athletes, the University dedicated an indoor/outdoor tennis facility adjacent to the Friday Center on N.C. Highway 54 in Chapel Hill in September 1992.

The Cone-Kenfield Tennis Center, which took four years to come to fruition, was the crowning jewel in a decade-long campaign to improve the athletic facilities at the University.

The tennis center, located on Don Skakle Drive, was dedicated September 12, 1992, with a crowd of more than 1,000 Carolina tennis and athletic enthusiasts in attendance. Paul Hardin, chancellor of the University, and athletic director John Swofford officially dedicated the structure and named the facility that now serves as the home of the Tar Heels' men's and women's tennis programs.

The facility is named for Ceasar Cone II, a 1928 alumnus of the University who played tennis at Carolina and was a great benefactor of the school throughout his life. Cone went on to found Cone Mills in Greensboro, N.C., one of the most successful textile manufacturing entities in the South. The center also bears the name of John Kenfield, the legendary Tar Heel tennis coach who compiled a sterling record of 434-30-2 in dual-match play from 1928-55. Kenfield's teams won 15 Southern Conference championships and two Atlantic Coast Conference team championships during his tenure. He coached the likes of Bitsy Grant, Wilmer Hines and Vic Seixas at UNC and his 1948 team finished third in the nation. Kenfield was Carolina's first-ever full-time tennis coach, and he took over the reins of the UNC team in time to coach Ceasar Cone II in his senior season in 1928.

Fund-raising on the Cone-Kenfield Tennis

Center was completed in early 1991 and construction on the facility began in the spring of that year.

Bill Moore of Raleigh, N.C., chaired the fund-raising committee that helped bring the facility to fruition. Other members of the Tennis Fundraising Committee were Cliff Alphin, Billy Armfield, Kelly Bowles, Herb Browne, Tom Chewning, Jim Corn, Lyons Gray, Kitty Harrison, Katherine Hogan, Paul Hoolahan, Allen Morris, M.W. Peebles, Jr., Moyer Smith, Sue Walsh, Keith Stoneman, John Swofford, and Ernie Williamson.

The $2 million complex includes:

- Six indoor and 12 outdoor, lighted, hard surface tennis courts
- Indoor spectator viewing on the upper level of the indoor center
- Outdoor seating for 2,000 in the Rauch Tennis Stadium
- Men's and women's varsity dressing facilities
- Public and visitor dressing facilities
- Fully-equipped weight-training rooms for both varsity teams
- An alley for coaches behind each set of indoor courts
- Offices and public restrooms on the upper level of the center core
- Indoor area of approximately 47,500 square feet

- Air conditioning for the indoor area
- Halide lighting on all courts
- Indirect lighting on the indoor courts

UNC added a new outdoor scoreboard to the facility prior to the 2004 campaign. It is located at the sites of courts No. 1, 2 and 3.

The first exhibition matches were played at the dedication ceremonies, prior to the UNC-Furman football game. Since then, Carolina's men's tennis squad has hosted at least one tournament each fall in addition to the spring dual match schedule.

Beginning in November 1992, the Tar Heels were named the host institution for the ITA Mideast Region Indoor Singles and Doubles Championships, which features the top men's singles and doubles players from the Mideast Region. Winners of the Mideast Region Championships advance to the ITA national indoor tournaments each year.

CAROLINA MEN'S TENNIS: TAR HEEL ATHLETIC TRADITION

Dean Smith is the winningest coach in Division I college basketball history with 879 wins in 36 seasons at UNC from 1961 through 1997.

In the fall of 2003, Sports Illustrated on Campus (above) declared UNC's women's soccer program the greatest college sports dynasty ever.

The Tar Heel program, under the leadership of legendary head coach Anson Dorrance, has won 18 of the 25 national championships ever decided in the sport of women's soccer on the collegiate level. The Tar Heels have also won all but two of the Atlantic Coast Conference championships ever decided.

Carolina's program passed the 600 win mark in 2005 and the overall record now stands at 602-27-18, a winning percentage of .945.

North Carolina's Dean E. Smith Center, named after the legendary Tar Heel basketball coach, is home to one of the nation's best men's college basketball program. Crowds of nearly 22,000 fans pack the Smith Center for every Tar Heel home game.

UNC football fans stormed the field at Kenan Stadium to celebrate UNC's 31-28 win over No. 4 Miami on October 30, 2004 as Connor Barth kicked a game-winning 42-yard field goal as time expired.

2004-05 UNC Athletic Program Highlights

The University of North Carolina finished ninth in the Sports Academy Directors Cup, an annual ranking that measures how Division I programs perform in NCAA postseason competition. This was the fourth consecutive year and 10th time in the 12-year history of the Directors Cup the Tar Heels have placed in the Top 10 nationally.

Carolina accumulated 940.5 points, beating the University of Southern California for ninth place by 38.25 points. Stanford was first for the 11th consecutive year (UNC won the inaugural award in 1993-94) with 1238.75 points. The Cardinal (Pac-10) was followed by Texas (Big 12), UCLA (Pac-10), Michigan (Big Ten), Duke (ACC), Florida, (SEC), Georgia (SEC) and Tennessee (SEC).

This was only the second time in 12 years that Carolina was not the highest ranked of the ACC schools. Virginia (13th) joined the Blue Devils and Tar Heels as the only ACC schools among the Top 25 finishers.

"Credit always goes to our student-athletes and coaches," said Director of Athletics Dick Baddour. "We are proud anytime we finish among the top schools in the country and to place in the Top 10 for the fourth year in a row is a remarkable achievement. It's a challenge to maintain a high level of success when we field as many sports as we do, so to finish this high again shows how special our student-athletes and coaches are and how much effort they put in to represent our university."

Carolina student-athletes also performed well academically, earning the highest fall and spring semester grade point averages in six years. The cumulative GPA for the fall was 2.871 and the spring was 2.953. Those marks included 315 student-athletes who earned a 3.0 or better in the fall and 318 with a 3.0 or better in the spring.

There were 298 UNC student-athletes on the ACC Honor Roll last year, the highest figure in school history, and 175 made the Dean's List in the fall semester. Another 163 student-athletes made the Dean's List in the spring.

Eight programs had team GPAs in excess of 3.0 in both the fall and spring semesters, including women's fencing, field hockey, women's golf, gymnastics, rowing, men's tennis, women's tennis and volleyball.

Five student-athletes earned a 4.0 GPA in both semesters - Heather Kendell (field hockey), Chris Litchford (men's soccer), Leigh Blomgren (women's soccer), Julia Bove (softball) and Lindsey Keiter (fencing).

Carolina was one of 25 Division I-A football programs in the country to graduate at least 70 percent of its players from the 1999-2000 entering class. Duke and Wake Forest were the other current ACC schools to graduate at least 70 percent from that class (Boston College, which joined the league on July 1, 2005 also was one of the 25 to accomplish this).

"These exceptional academic benchmarks demonstrate that Carolina student-athletes understand academics comes first, and our goal is to be outstanding in all areas," says Baddour. "Compliments to our coaches for recruiting true student-athletes, to our students-athletes for putting in the time and hard work to succeed, and to our staff for assisting them in reaching their goals both academically and athletically."

Carolina's NACDA Cup Finishes: 2004-05: 9th; 2003-04: 7th; 2002-03: 8th; 2001-02: 4th; 2000-01: 15th; 1999-2000: 5th; 1998-99: Tied 17th; 1997-98: Tied 2nd; 1996-97: 2nd; 1995-96: 6th; 1994-95: 2nd; 1993-94: 1st.

Dick Baddour

• Director of Athletics

Dick Baddour, a 1966 graduate of the University of North Carolina, was named Director of Athletics on June 25, 1997. In his eight years as director, the UNC Department of Athletics has undergone a number of changes, yet remains one of the premiere programs in the Atlantic Coast Conference and in the nation.

The Goldsboro, N.C., native heads a program that with 28 varsity sports is the largest in the ACC. Carolina prides itself on a strong overall athletic program and finished ninth in the 2004-05 Director's Cup, a measure of NCAA postseason success. The Tar Heels, inaugural winners of the Cup in 1994, have finished among the top 10 teams nine times in the competition's 12 years.

Baddour is in his 39th year of continuous service to the university. He graduated from UNC in 1966 and was appointed Assistant Dean of Men in 1967. He served as Assistant Dean of Admissions and Assistant Dean of the UNC School of Law and also earned a Master of Arts degree in education prior to joining the athletic department in 1986.

In 2001, he received the Distinguished Service Medal from the UNC General Alumni Association.

Active in Chapel Hill community affairs, he is a past president of the Public School Foundation and has served on the Parks and Recreation Commission. He and his wife, Lynda, have two sons, Allen and David, and a daughter, Jennifer.

Dr. Beth Miller

• Sr. Assoc. Director of Athletics

Beth Miller is in her 21st year supervising North Carolina's highly-successful 26-team Olympic Sports program and serves as UNC's Senior Woman Administrator. She is a 1968 alumna of Appalachian State University with a B.S. degree in health and physical education. She has a master's from ASU and earned a Doctor of Arts degree in physical education at Middle Tennessee State in 1974.

From 1969-72, Miller served as the head volleyball and basketball coach at Appalachian State. She became head volleyball coach at UNC in 1975 and led the Tar Heels to four consecutive ACC titles from 1980-83 and five postseason tournament appearances. She also coached softball at Carolina from 1978-79.

In 1979, Miller was named Athletic Business Manager. She retired from coaching volleyball after 1983, but continued to handle all financial affairs for the department through 1987. She has overseen UNC's Olympic Sports program since 1985.

Miller currently serves on a number of Atlantic Coast Conference committees, including those for women's basketball, women's golf and volleyball. She chairs the Awards Committee and is a member of the Committee on Equity. She also serves on UNC's Housing Advisory Board.

Miller is a native of Landis, N.C.

Department of Athletics Mission Statement

The Department of Athletics has offered high quality athletic programs for many years. Through a dedicated commitment to educational interests, competitive athletic programs, and integrity in all areas, the student-athletes, coaches and staff strive to bring credit and recognition to the University.

The mission of the Department is to sponsor a broad-based athletic program that provides educational and athletic opportunities for young men and women to grow and develop, and to serve the interests of the University by complementing and enhancing its diversity and quality of life. Coaches, as educators, are foundational to this process. In keeping with the University's efforts to offer programs of regional and national acclaim, the Department's athletic programs strive for competitive excellence within the Atlantic Coast Conference or other similar institutions. Through its athletic programs, the University seeks to unite students, faculty, staff and alumni in a common and shared experience. The Department seeks to contribute to the diversity of the University by offering opportunities for enhanced racial/ethnic, cultural and geographic representation.

To fulfill this mission, the Department, with the approval of the Board of Trust, has developed principles of operation to provide guidance and direction to its personnel. This Mission Statement and accompanying principles require strong dedication and commitment from all who participate in, coach in and support the Department of Athletics.

Department of Athletics Statement on Gambling

The mission of the Department of Athletics is to sponsor a broad-based athletic program that provides educational and athletic opportunities for young men and women to grow and develop. In keeping with the Department's mission and the University's commitment to educational interests, competitive athletic programs, and integrity in all areas, the Department of Athletics strongly condemns the influence of gambling on intercollegiate athletics.

Student gambling is a significant issue on college campuses. Student-athlete involvement in gambling has produced many tragic situations, both for student-athletes and the universities they represent. Student-athletes often compete in contests that generate interest from those involved in gambling and, possibly, organized crime. If given the opportunity, those interests will not hesitate to exploit the position student-athletes hold on college campuses. As such, the University of North Carolina is firmly opposed to all forms of gambling and bribery related to intercollegiate athletics.

To fulfill its educational obligation, the Department provides a gambling education program to all its student-athletes and departmental staff members. This statement and the educational program are reflections of the Department's commitment to keeping intercollegiate athletics free from the influences of gambling and its related activities.

The Department requires its staff members and student-athletes to adhere to NCAA, state and federal laws regarding gambling. In the interest of fair competition and the growth and development of student-athletes, the Department strongly urges its friends and supporters to refrain from gambling/betting on contests involving collegiate competition and to abide by state and federal laws.

Through its teaching, research and public service, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill is an educational and economic beacon for the people of North Carolina and beyond.

•History

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill was the nation's first state university to open its doors and the only public university to award degrees in the 18th century.

Authorized by the N.C. Constitution in 1776, the university was chartered by the N.C. General Assembly Dec. 11, 1789, the same year George Washington first was inaugurated as president.

The cornerstone was laid for Old East, the nation's first state university building, Oct. 12, 1793. Hinton James, the first student, arrived from Wilmington, N.C., Feb. 12, 1795.

•Location

The 729-acre central campus includes the two oldest state university buildings, Old East and Person Hall. Old East and Playmakers Theatre, an 1852 Greek-revival building are National Historic Landmarks.

The American Society of Landscape Architects selected the Carolina campus as one of the most beautifully landscaped spots in the country. That listing is among the praise affirming the charm of mighty oaks, majestic quadrangles, brick sidewalks and other landscaping synonymous with UNC.

Today, the campus is undergoing an unprecedented physical transformation made possible in part by North Carolinians' overwhelming approval of the $3.1 billion bond referendum for higher education. The referendum, approved in November 2000, was the nation's largest higher education bond package.

The bonds mean $510 million for renovations, repairs and new buildings so 21st century students at Carolina can learn in a 21st century environment. Also guided by a visionary master plan for growth now rapidly coming to life, the university is investing another $800-plus million from non-state sources, including private gifts and overhead receipts from faculty research grants, for other buildings essential to excellence. The resulting $1.3 billion capital construction program is among the largest underway at any major American university.

Recently completed projects include the renovation of Memorial Hall, which anchors the university's planned arts common and is now a comfortable, elegant venue for the performing arts; the Rams Head Center, a linchpin in the campus master plan that combines a 700-space parking deck, dining and student recreation facilities, and innovative sustainability practices; and the renovated Health Sciences Library, which features 140 computer workstations and technology that will encourage collaboration among scientists and educators in Chapel Hill and beyond.

This fall, groundbreakings will include the North Carolina Cancer Hospital, a $180 million facility being built by the UNC Health Care System that was approved by the North Carolina General Assembly and Gov. Mike Easley in 2004.

UNC anchors one corner of the famed Research Triangle Park, which has played a vital role in nurturing the economic development of North Carolina.

•Recent Rankings

Several national publications regularly publish rankings that listed Carolina prominently in categories ranging from academic quality to affordability to diversity to public service to international presence. Recent highlights include:

5th best public university in U.S. News & World Report's annual "Best Colleges" guidebook. Affirmation as a national leader in student accessibility; 2nd among public campuses and 19th overall in "Great Schools, Great Prices," based on academic quality, net cost of attendance and average student debt. Also 6th among publics for "least debt."

Kenan-Flagler Business School: tied for 6th among undergraduate programs.

4th among public universities in "The Top American Research Universities," produced in December 2004 by the Lombardi Program on Measuring University Performance at the University of Florida. Based on categories such as research, endowment assets, private giving, faculty, and advanced training.

1st among the 100 best public colleges combining great academics and affordable tuitions as ranked by Kiplinger's Personal Finance. Carolina has been first four consecutive times.

A "best value" among 81 schools chosen for "America's Best Value Colleges, 2006 Edition" by The Princeton Review/Random House for outstanding academics, relatively low costs, and generous financial aid packages. Carolina has appeared in this publication two years in a row.

1st for the top entrepreneurial campus and 5th "most connected," according to The Princeton Review and Forbes.com. UNC has an undergraduate business degree offering with a concentration in entrepreneurship in the Kenan-Flagler Business School, a new minor in entrepreneurship in the College of Arts and Sciences, and a new campuswide Carolina Entrepreneurial Initiative. In 2000, UNC became the nation's largest university requiring undergraduates to own laptop computers. With more than 850 wireless access points, UNC provides wireless connectivity in classrooms, labs, libraries, residence halls and quadrangles.

1st among public research universities, for the second consecutive year, recording the highest rate of undergraduates studying abroad in 2002-2003; 7th among all research universities for the total number of undergraduates going abroad, according to an annual report published by the Institute of International Education.

1st among U.S. academic institutions recognized as "best places to work for postdocs," according to The Scientist magazine. Based on conditions for postdoctoral fellows working in the life sciences as part of the magazine's third annual survey. Carolina was 6th among all U.S. institutions, including government institutions and private research centers.

"Hottest" for health careers, according to the Kaplan/Newsweek 2005 "How to Get into College" guide, based on admissions trends and interviews with a broad array of educators, admissions officers, students and other long-time observers of the admissions process. An article in the guide says UNC's diverse offerings in the health disciplines – all in the same place – are helping attract prospective students.

14th among top U.S. colleges and universities for the number of alumni volunteering to serve in the Peace Corps in 2004. Currently, 60 Chapel Hill graduates are representing the United States abroad by serving people who live in the developing world as Peace Corps volunteers.

14th – the highest ranking for any major public research university – in the 2004 "Black Enterprise-DayStar Top 50 Colleges and Universities for African Americans" list. This ranking was based on responses to questions about which schools were both a good academic and social fit for African-Americans.

One of the nation's top universities in fostering social responsibility and public service, according to The Princeton Review and Campus Compact. Carolina appears in a book, "Colleges With a Conscience: 81 Great Schools With Outstanding Community Involvement." Based on admissions practices, scholarships rewarding community service and support for service-learning programs.

Among the 20 very "best buy" public universities in the U.S. and Canada as judged by the 2005 Fiske Guide to Colleges based on the quality of the academic programs in relation to the cost of attendance.

Degree programs or specialty areas from the schools of business, education, law, medicine, pharmacy, public health as well as the College of Arts and Sciences appeared prominently in the Spring 2005 edition of U.S. News & World Report's "American's Best Graduate Schools" issue. Highlights included medicine, overall primary care, 2nd, overall research, tied for 23rd; pharmacy, 3rd for Pharm.D. doctoral program; Kenan-Flagler Business School's MBA program, tied for 21st, law, tied for 27th; education, tied for 27th; sociology, tied for 4th; history, tied for 13th; political science, tied for 13th; English, tied for 19th; and psychology, tied for 22nd.

Kenan-Flagler appeared in several other best MBA program lists. They included Business Week, 16th, Forbes, 8th for return on investment to graduates; The Wall Street Journal,

CAROLINA MEN'S TENNIS: THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

11th based on a survey of corporate recruiters; The Financial Times, 7th; and Hispanic Business, 5th, among top business schools for Hispanics. The school's international executive education program was ranked 17th overall by The Financial Times. The school was included in a new Princeton Review book, "Best 143 Business Schools," and the MBA program was ranked 6th for best campus environment, 10th for best professors and 10th for most family friendly.

•Key Statistics

Now in its third century, Carolina offers bachelor's, master's, doctoral and professional degrees in academic areas critical to North Carolina's future: business, dentistry, education, law, medicine, nursing, public health and social work, among others. Offerings include 71 bachelor's, 110 master's and 77 doctorate degree programs. The health sciences are well integrated with the liberal arts, basic sciences and high-tech programs. Patient outreach programs affiliated with Carolina and the UNC Health Care System serve citizens in all 100 North Carolina counties.

Carolina belongs to the select group of 62 American and two Canadian campuses forming the Association of American Universities.

In fall 2004, Carolina enrolled more than 26,800 students from all 100 North Carolina counties, the other 49 states and more than 100 other countries. Eighty-two percent of Carolina's undergraduates come from North Carolina.

Those students learn from a 3,100-member faculty. Many of those faculty members hold or have held major posts in virtually every national scholarly or professional organization and have earned election to the most prestigious academic academies and organizations.

The Carolina academic community benefits from a library with more than 5.6 million volumes and perennially ranks among the best research libraries in North America as judged by the Association of Research Libraries. The most recent association listings place Carolina 15th among 114 research libraries in North America. UNC's North Carolina Collection is the largest of its kind among state-oriented collections on campus nationwide. And the Southern and rare book collections also are among the country's finest.

Carolina's more than 243,000 alumni live in all 50 states and in 146 countries. Notable alumni include writers Thomas Wolfe, Shelby Foote, Russell Banks and Jill McCorkle; athletes Michael Jordan, Vince Carter, Antawn Jamison, Mia Hamm, Marion Jones and Davis Love III; and journalists Alan Murray, Roger Mudd, Charles Kuralt, Stuart Scott and Tom Wicker.

Others include former White House Chief of Staff Erskine Bowles; former White House Communications Director Don Baer; former U.S. Sen. John Edwards (now director of UNC's new Center on Poverty, Work and Opportunity); Bill Harrison, chairman and chief executive officer of JPMorgan Chase & Co.; Sallie L. Krawcheck, chief financial officer and head of strategy for Citigroup Inc.; Ken Thompson, chairman and chief executive officer of Wachovia Corp.; Dr. Mary Sue Coleman, a biochemist and former Carolina vice chancellor and now the University of Michigan president; Dr. Elson Floyd, former Carolina executive vice chancellor and now president of the University of Missouri system; U.S. President James Polk; geneticist Francis Collins; actors Jack Palance, George Grizzard and Andy Griffith, as well as actresses Louise Fletcher and Sharon Lawrence; editorial cartoonist Jeff MacNelly; Hugh McColl, retired chairman and chief executive officer of Bank of America Corp.; and fashion designer Alexander Julian.

•The Carolina Covenant

Carolina has expanded its nationally recognized Carolina Covenant initiative to make a debt-free college education possible for more low-income students. The changes, announced by Chancellor James Moeser during his 2004 State of the University address, send an even stronger message about accessibility and the traditional commitment to opportunity in Chapel Hill for qualified students – regardless of their ability to pay.

Launched in fall 2004, the Carolina Covenant initially covered 225 freshmen who can graduate without debt. Instead, they agree to work on campus 10 to 12 hours weekly in a federal work-study job, and Carolina meets the rest of their needs through a combination of federal, state, university, and other privately funded grants and scholarships.

Now the university is increasing the financial eligibility requirements for the program to cover an estimated 120 new students. Starting in fall 2005, students and their families must be at or below 200 percent of the federal poverty level – up from 150 percent. That raises the threshold to cover a family of four with an annual income of about $37,000 or a single parent with a child who makes about $24,000. This year, those income levels were at about $28,000 and $18,000, respectively.

Carolina became the first major public U.S. university to announce plans for such a program in fall 2004. Since then, several universities, including Virginia, Maryland, Nebraska, Illinois, Harvard and Brown, have created or announced plans for similar programs. UNC also has begun a mentorship program for Covenant scholars being supported by faculty volunteers.

The university consistently ranks among the national leaders in making education financially accessible to students. Carolina also meets the full need of middle-income students, with financial aid packages comprised of two-thirds grants and scholarships and one-third loans and work-study. (Most aid packages are closer to two-thirds loans and one-third grants.)

Carolina Covenant scholars were admitted under the university's rigorous admissions standards. More than half of the first year's class in 2004 were first-generation college students. Covenant students posted an average 4.21 grade-point average and 1,209 Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) score.

•The Carolina First Campaign

The Carolina First Campaign is a comprehensive, multi-year private fund-raising campaign – the largest in the university's history – to support the vision of Carolina becoming the nation's leading public university. The ultimate beneficiaries of reaching that goal will be the people of North Carolina, whom Carolina is dedicated to serve.

The university exceeded the $1 billion mark for the campaign during fiscal 2002-2003. As of June 2005, the campaign has raised more than $1.47 billion in gifts and pledges from alumni and friends toward its $1.8 billion goal.

Carolina First has created 144 new endowed professorships toward a total goal of 200 and 473 new scholarships and fellowships for students toward a target of 1,000. Faculty support and the quality of students and facilities are among key priorities for the campaign, scheduled to close in July 2007.

Other campaign priorities include providing the means to pursue strategic initiatives to enrich the academic experience; conduct research that improves the health and the economic, social, and cultural well being of citizens; and redouble the commitment to public service and engagement.

Total giving in fiscal 2004 was $190 million in gifts and private grants – the largest single amount received in a single year in the university's history. The campaign counts gifts, pledges and deferred gifts, bringing the campaign total to $237 million for fiscal 2004. The $190 million figure counts only gifts received outright.

In fall 2000, Chancellor James Moeser pledged to the people of North Carolina that if they passed the higher education bond referendum the university would triple their investment with private funds. The people responded overwhelmingly, and successful completion of the Carolina First campaign will fulfill that pledge. The ultimate beneficiaries will be the people of North Carolina.

•Students

Recent freshman classes at Carolina have set new standards of excellence as measured by the rigorous coursework students have taken in high school, as well as their grades and SAT scores. In 2004, the university's incoming freshmen continued that trend. And the most academically qualified incoming class ever is headed to Carolina in fall 2005 with an average SAT score of 1301, up 14 points over last year's class. Admitted freshmen hail from every North Carolina county, each of the nation's 50 states and 44 other countries.

Incoming freshmen will include 43 new

Morehead Scholars: 24 of North Carolina's most dynamic young leaders and the rest from 14 other states and England. Among the largest and most competitive scholarships at U.S. colleges and universities, the Morehead Awards cover all expenses for four years of undergraduate study, including summer enrichment experiences. The program, now more than a half-century old, is modeled after the Rhodes Scholarships to Oxford University in England.

The newest Tar Heels who will enter Carolina this fall will include 22 Robertson Scholars. Along with 20 others who will matriculate at Duke University, they are part of the fifth class of this unique scholarship program, created by a $24 million gift from Julian and Josie Robertson. The full-tuition scholarship allows each student to spend a semester in residence at the other campus. The scholarships bring together two of the nation's finest universities and help foster enhanced collaboration between both campuses.

As the first public university in the nation, Carolina has a long and proud history of linking its expertise and energy to the needs of the people. Among those graduating last May were champions of the people — 15 scholars who contributed hundreds of hours of service to the community and received special training in how to make that service more effective. These students comprised the first graduating class of the Public Service Scholars Program, which was launched in 2003 by the Carolina Center for Public Service. More than 450 students are enrolled in this innovative program, working in nursing homes, hospitals, public schools, the Special Olympics, the Animal Protection Society, the Family Violence Prevention Center, Habitat for Humanity and the Big Buddy mentoring program. They reported more than 26,000 hours of service during the 2004-05s academic year.

The number of Carolina students winning distinguished scholarships is rivaled by only a handful of other universities. For example, Carolina has the second largest number of Rhodes Scholars among public universities (38 since 1902). The 38th winner, Class of 2002 alumna Rachel Mazzyck of Laurel, Md., won the award last November to study at Oxford University in England. She earned an undergraduate degree in English with highest distinction from UNC and graduated from Harvard University's master's program in education policy and management. She will use the scholarship to earn a doctorate of philosophy specializing in educational studies.

Last spring, nine other undergraduates joined Mazzyck as among the university's distinguished scholarship winners by being selected for Truman, Goldwater, Mitchell and Churchill scholarships, as well as a Mellon fellowship and a slot on USA Today's 2005 All-USA College Academic Team:

Lauren McAlee, a junior from Crofton, Md., with a double major in public policy and philosophy, won the Truman Scholarship, which will fund her senior year and graduate studies. She hopes to open a charter school in a low-income community.

Four students — juniors Carrie Gibbons of Cary, Kimberly Kallianos of Atlanta and James Mahaffey of Raleigh, and sophomore Gregory Charville of Raleigh, won Barry M. Goldwater scholarships. This award goes to students who show a strong commitment to careers in mathematics, the natural sciences or engineering. Carolina has had 27 Goldwater Scholars since the first awards were made in 1989. This year, UNC was among 12 campuses with four winners each, including Harvard, Princeton and Stanford universities.

Richard Waters of Morehead City won the George J. Mitchell Scholarship for graduate study in Ireland. Richard, who graduated in May with a double major in chemistry and mathematics, is Carolina's second Mitchell Scholarship winner since the program began in 1998. He plans to earn a graduate degree in applied science at the University College Cork in Cork, Ireland, and will eventually pursue a medical degree to help people in underserved regions of the world.

Nicholas Love, a biology major who graduated in May, won a Churchill Scholarship for outstanding academic and extracurricular accomplishments. Nicholas, who hails from Brighton, Mich., will seek a graduate degree in zoology at Cambridge University in England.

John W. Steen IV of Winston-Salem received an Andrew W. Mellon Fellowship. John, who graduated with highest honors in English in May, will use the award to study for a doctorate in comparative literature at Emory University.

Pablo Durana, a junior from Montreal, was chosen as a member of USA Today's 2005 All-USA College Academic Team. Durana was one of 20 undergraduates chosen for the "first team." The communication studies major founded and coordinates the Carolina Language Partnership, which offers one-on-one English lessons to Hispanic employees at UNC.

•Faculty

Dr. Oliver Smithies, Excellence Professor of pathology and laboratory medicine, was one of two recipients of the 2005 March of Dimes Prize in Developmental Biology for his role in developing gene targeting. Smithies helped develop a technique that gives scientists around the world the ability to alter particular genes in cultured cells and transfer those targeted genes to laboratory mice. Gene targeting allows them to design and produce "knockout" mice to study how the disabled gene works and to create animal models of human diseases. Smithies also won the 2001 Albert Lasker Award for Basic Medical Research, the nation's most distinguished honor for outstanding contributions to basic medical research. The Lasker Awards have often been called "America's Nobels," and more than 60 researchers who won a Lasker went on to receive the Nobel Prize.

Two faculty members last spring were elected fellows of the prestigious American Academy of Arts and Sciences in recognition of major contributions to their fields. They are Drs. Jack D. Griffith, Kenan Distinguished Professor of Microbiology and Immunology and member of the UNC Lineberger Comprehensive Cancer Center; and Joseph M. DeSimone, W.R. Kenan, Jr. Distinguished Professor of Chemistry and Chemical Engineering at UNC and N.C. State University. The academy is considered the nation's oldest and most illustrious learned society. Griffin's melding of electron microscopy methods with biochemical tools revealed important insights into genetic diseases. His 1999 co-discovery that the ends of chromosomes are tied in firmly knotted loops provided insights into cancer and aging. DeSimone holds more than 100 U.S. patents and is renowned for discovering revolutionary ways to use carbon dioxide in place of conventional organic solvents for environmentally responsible manufacturing, cleaning and processing. Earlier this year, he was elected to membership in the National Academy of Engineering. Griffith and DeSimone bring to 27 the total number of Carolina faculty members elected to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Assistant Professor Lisa Pearce of the Department of Sociology was named a William T. Grant Scholar. The award provides $300,000 over five years to support research in youth development. Pearce, a fellow of the Carolina Population Center, will use the funds to study the role of religion in the shaping of self-image, aspirations, and achievement in youth.

Two distinguished professors at Carolina have been selected for prestigious Guggenheim Fellowship awards. Drs. Donald J. Raleigh, Jay Richard Judson distinguished professor of history, and Gerald J. Postema, Cary C. Boshamer professor of philosophy and law are 2005 recipients. Fellows are selected by the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation and recognized for distinguished individual achievement and exceptional promise for future accomplishment. Raleigh has written, translated or edited more than a dozen books on a wide variety of issues related to Russia. He will use his fellowship to research an oral history project, "Soviet Baby Boomers: An Oral History of the Class of '67." Postema has written close to 60 publications, articles and chapters, and has written several books, including "Bentham and the Common Law Tradition."

Student-Athlete Services
Advancing toward graduation, building Character and developing leadership

Student-Athlete Services at the University of North Carolina encompasses three areas that play an integral part in the collegiate experience of every UNC student-athlete. Those three areas are Academic Development, Student-Athlete Development and Leadership Development.

• ACADEMIC DEVELOPMENT

The Academic Support Program is the main service utilized in advancing UNC student-athletes to graduation. The program assists student-athletes in exploring their interests and abilities, enjoying a broad educational experience, and reaching or exceeding their academic goals. "Our young people are students first and athletes second and that will always be the case at the University," says UNC Director of Athletics Dick Baddour. "That is a credit to our coaches, administrators and support staff, but most of all, our student-athletes. Their accomplishments in the classroom are very impressive."

During the 2004-05 academic year, 297 Carolina student-athletes made the ACC Academic Honor Roll, which requires a cumulative GPA of at least 3.0 for the year. Nine members of the 2004-05 Tar Heel men's tennis squad made the ACC Honor Roll.

In the fall of 2004, 176 student-athletes made the Dean's List, and 163 did so in the spring of 2005. Five men's tennis players were named to the Dean's List in the spring semester of 2005 and two were named to the Dean's List in the fall semester of 2005.

The Academic Support Program is housed primarily in the Pope Academic Support Center, which is equipped with study facilities, tutorial rooms, a computer lab, a 128-seat auditorium, counselors' offices and state-of-the-art video and computer equipment. At the center, students meet with staff to discuss course selection, major and career exploration, academic progress and academic eligibility.

The Academic Support Program helps freshmen transition from high school to college through a variety of academic programs such as academic counseling, individual tutoring, group review sessions and supplemental instruction.

A member of each team serves as the Academic Team Captain, providing a strong link between the Academic Support Program and the other student-athletes on the squad. The Academic Team Captain for men's tennis for 2005-06 is Lenny Gullan.

The full-time academic support counselor who is assigned to work with the men's tennis team in the area of Student-Athlete Services is Kym Orr.

•STUDENT-ATHLETE DEVELOPMENT

Building character in UNC student-athletes is the main charge of Student-Athlete Development.

Through Carolina Outreach, Tar Heels are involved in a variety of projects and organizations on campus and in the community. The UNC Department of Athletics has partnered with Gatorade and the UNC School of Public Health for a national pilot program called Get Kids in Action, in which Tar Heel student-athletes visit local elementary schools to encourage children to exercise. The Carolina Dreams program allows young patients at UNC Children's Hospitals to attend Tar Heel sporting events with UNC student-athletes. Other recent activities have included building a house with Habitat for Humanity, cooking meals at the Ronald McDonald House and cleaning up the roadways through the Adopt-a-Highway program.

Student-Athlete Development also seeks to develop student-athletes on a personal level through a variety of speakers who address issues like nutrition, gambling, relationship communication and substance use. Career Development helps UNC student-athletes look beyond college with resources such as career counseling and workshops on resume writing and interviewing skills.

• LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT

The primary outlet for Leadership Development is the Carolina Leadership Academy, started at UNC in 2004. As the nation's premier leadership development program in collegiate athletics, the Carolina Leadership Academy develops, challenges and supports student-athletes, coaches and staff in their continual quest to become world class leaders in athletics, academics and life.

The Academy consists of three programs:

Spring 2005 Dean's List Honorees
Benjamin Carlotti, Sebastian Guejman, Lenny Gullan, Tristan Heinrich, David Stone
Fall 2005 Dean's List Honorees
Lenny Gullan, Tristan Heinrich

The 2003-04 Tar Heel men's tennis team participated in a community service project in which UNC student-athletes assisted in the building of a Habitat For Humanity house in the greater Chapel Hill community.

CREED Program

Leadership training begins in the freshman year. All leadership begins with personal leadership, therefore freshmen are taught skills to effectively lead themselves.

Training consists of monthly meetings featuring keynote speakers and small group discussion sessions. Upperclass student-athletes serve as peer mentors and discussion leaders. Special focus is on responsibility, accountability, making good choices, ethics and character building.

Rising Stars Program

• Carolina CREED

As a University of North Carolina student-athlete, I pledge to make every effort to abide by the Carolina CREED as a show of my commitment to the University, the Department of Athletics, my team and myself.

C - I will know and embrace the tradition and culture of this great University and its athletics department

R - I will respect myself and others

E - I will pursue excellence in my academic work by striving to reach my academic potential while preparing for a career of significance

E - I will excel athletically by committing myself to performance excellence, team success and continual improvement

D - I will develop the capacity to effectively lead myself and others

• STRENGTH AND CONDITIONING

Under the direction of the UNC Olympic sports strength and conditioning staff, Tar Heel student-athletes get outstanding coaching intended to help maximize their physical potential. The staff evaluates Carolina student-athletes in a variety of ways, including the use of specialized software for lifting and running and video analysis to encourage steady progress toward reaching optimum preparation for competition.

The men's tennis team trains at the Olympic sports weight room in Kenan Field House. In addition to top-of-the-line strength equipment, the Kenan-based center boasts a five-lane, 25-yard rubberized surface for teaching and performing warm-up activities, acceleration drills and agility movements. Year-round training produces athletes who are prepared to compete successfully and safely.

• SPORTS MEDICINE

The Tar Heels receive excellent care from one of the country's best sports medicine staffs.

Dr. Tim Taft, Director of Sports Medicine, oversees a comprehensive program designed to keep student-athletes healthy and to rehabilitate any injuries quickly and successfully. Dr. Tom Brickner is the physician who works directly with the men's tennis team while Alex Creighton is the orthopaedic surgeon for the men's tennis squad.

A member of the athletic training staff is present at all matches and practices to ensure that any injuries receive prompt and proper care. Head certified athletic trainer Sally Mays oversees care for the men's tennis team and is assisted by certified athletic training graduate student Brian Vesce and undergraduate student trainer Matt Odom.

sary to become effective leaders. The program includes monthly meetings, interactive exercises and action learning experiences.

Veteran Leaders Program

This program is designed for team captains and veteran student-athletes. It provides advanced leadership training and support, teaches the critical skills and insights necessary to be effective vocal leaders and provides a strong peer network. Student-athletes meet regularly to learn and reinforce leadership principles and share successes, frustrations and lessons.

THE RAMS CLUB

GIVING FUTURE
Legends A CHANCE
TO BE
Legendary

MANY OF THE LEGENDS OF COLLEGIATE SPORTS AND BEYOND have passed through Chapel Hill – and future legends are working today to stand by these storied Tar Heels as a part of the proud Carolina athletic tradition.

You can have an immediate impact on the lives of today's Carolina student athletes by participating as an annual member of the Rams Club or as a scholarship donor. The athletic scholarship endowment trust provides a valuable foundation for scholarship support at UNC, while annual contributions address the growing divide between the endowment income and the actual scholarship budget.

Some of the many benefits you will enjoy as a Rams Club member:

- Priority in purchasing season tickets for Carolina Football.
- Opportunity to purchase individual game tickets for Carolina Basketball and Football before any general public tickets are made available, as well as the opportunity to purchase Mini-Season Basketball tickets.
- Priority for any postseason game tickets in basketball and football.
- 12-month subscription to the Tar Heel Monthly.
- Media guides for Carolina Football and Basketball (starting at $200 Ram level).
- Discounts at Finley Golf Course.
- Access to the Rams Room at Kenan Stadium on home football Saturdays.
- Invitations to local chapter functions with Roy Williams, John Bunting, Sylvia Hatchell and other Carolina coaches.
- And so much more (added benefits like football parking are available based on your gift level)!

Foremost among the benefits members enjoy is the knowledge that they positively impact the lives of over 450 student athletes at Carolina annually. The Rams Club asks you to be a part of its effort to support Carolina's athletics scholarship program. And you can do so at many different levels – starting for as little as $100 annually (and less than that for young alumni)!

For more information on the Rams Club and membership benefits, please visit www.ramsclub.com.
