Supporting UNC Women's Tennis

The University of North Carolina has a long-term agreement with Nike, which provides UNC teams with shoes, apparel, equipment bags and other products. The contract, signed in 1994 and again in 1997, was extended for a period of eight more years beginning in July 2002. In addition to Nike products, the agreement provides $100,000 annually to the Chancellor's Academic Enhancement Fund for undergraduate teaching and $100,000 annually to the UNC athletic department to reward Olympic sport programs and coaches for academic and athletic excellence.

Carolina Women's Tennis 2007 Season Preview

As the Tar Heels prepared for the 2007 spring season, head coach Brian Kalbas took some time to preview the upcoming campaign.

On the senior leadership of Jenna Long, Sara Anundsen and Caitlin Collins:

The three seniors have been named tri-captains. I think it's a credit and a tribute to each of them because I think they all possess unique leadership qualities that will help guide the younger classes and lead them to hopefully one of the most outstanding seasons ever. They are doing an amazing job of teaching the younger classes how to become effective leaders by being positive role models both on and off the court. They've come in as freshmen together - all were highly touted juniors - and they've all accomplished many amazing feats during their career here. In Carolina history, they are very likely to become the most successful class to date. They are leaving a legacy of true Carolina pride for our future generations of Tar Heels.

Jenna Long, having not been a regular starter as a freshman and not really being in our regular singles lineup, has solidified herself as one of the elite players in the nation. Leadership-wise, she was a captain last year, and she's been able to earn the respect of her teammates by being one of the hardest workers and by always having an even-keel, positive attitude. Jenna's game has truly improved every single year through her dedication and hard work, and that has definitely given her teammates a sense of inspiration. Sara Anundsen is one of the most competitive players I have ever coached. Her "never-say-die" attitude and drive have been very instrumental to her teammates both on and off the court. She has been very important in our success as a team, and we have always been able to count on her on giving every ounce of focus and determination to win that last match on the court. As a freshman, she was named the Team MVP and has remained completely driven to improve all facets of her game.

Caitlin Collins is one of the most vocal and hardest-working players on the squad. She has done an amazing job of communicating the areas in her game that need to improve. Through her hard work, her game has elevated and she won last year's team MVP, which speaks volumes for her tenacious character, team comradery, work ethic and positive attitude. She is very motivated to get better in her ability to beat some of the top players in the nation.

All three different personalities mesh and gel very well and, overall, their experience, their success and their leadership will be key to our success this year.

On building on the success of recent seasons:

The key last year was that our players were never satisfied with mediocrity. They really wanted to raise their level and our players got better. Jenna moved to No. 1, Caitlin moved to No. 2, Sara moved to No. 3, and they assumed positions higher in the lineup that they had never played before and really excelled. We also had freshmen - Austin Smith, Laura Reichert and Meg Fanjoy - move in and really take some ownership of their positions and of the team and not play like freshmen.

To combine the two this year, we're going to have the most depth that we've ever had. We have freshmen who have come in and done really well this fall for us. The key is to have all the players keep working hard and getting better so that at the end of the season we're playing our best but at the same time establishing roles on the team that not only everyone is comfortable with, but also that are understood by all players. We want the players to continue striving to improve on a daily basis and to become the most competitive and tenacious players possible. This will allow us to make a huge impact on our conference.

On the strong non-conference schedule this year: As I said, we want to play our best tennis at the end of the year. So when we get to the end of the year, it is important that we have played a great schedule, that we've prepared ourselves to win a national championship. This year we have an even more daunting non-conference schedule because most of our tough opponents are on the road, whereas last year we had those big wins at home. We play Notre Dame, Northwestern and Florida on the road, so it's going to be a challenge for us, but those matches will help us get better. We have a senior-laden team, and we have a lot of depth, and hopefully those two things will help us have a great non-conference record this year as well.

On the strength of the Atlantic Coast Conference: At one point last year, there were six ACC teams ranked in the top ten, and that just speaks volumes for our conference. This year, each of the conference teams has gotten better. We've gotten better on paper and everyone else has gotten better. Duke, Georgia Tech, Clemson and Miami, who made the finals in the NCAA championships last year, have all improved. Last year, at one point, the top three singles players in the nation were all from the ACC, so I think it's just an incredible conference.

On this year's freshman class: Katrina Tsang, Sanaz Marand, and Linzee Mabrey have come in and done extremely well with their results and also with their preparation. Katrina Tsang is very professional in the way she goes about her practice habits and in the way she competes. She works on every aspect of her game, and you can see when she plays how she implements those things in her matches. Sanaz Marand in such a short time has transformed her talent into one that's extremely feisty. She is the consummate team player and we are expecting amazing things from her. Linzee Mabrey has added tremendous depth to our team. She has shown incredible desire to work hard and is continuously striving to get better every single day. They are all very talented in different ways and they're adding a lot of competition within our team, which is going to be good, and they're also adding a lot of strength and depth within our team in both singles and doubles.

Head Coach Brian Kalbas Carolina Women's Tennis

Brian Kalbas
Head Coach
Fourth Year at UNC
15th Overall
Notre Dame, 1989

Currently in his fourth season at the University of North Carolina and his 15th season overall as a collegiate head coach, Brian Kalbas has led the Tar Heels through one of the most successful runs in school history. Highlighted by just the second trip to the NCAA Quarterfinals in school history in 2005, UNC has advanced to the NCAA Tournament all three years under Kalbas.

Carolina reached a new pinnacle in 2006, earning a national ranking of No. 3, the highest in program history. The Tar Heels advanced to the NCAA Sweet Sixteen for the second straight season, falling to Duke in the Round of 16. With a final record of 26-7, UNC posted its highest win total since the 1981-82 squad finished 26-14. Kalbas was named the Wilson/ITA Southeast Region Coach of the Year for his efforts.

The 2004-05 season was capped by a dramatic run to the NCAA Quarterfinals. After finishing 7-3 in Atlantic Coast Conference play, the Tar Heels earned the right to host the first and second rounds of the NCAA Team Championships. Carolina opened the tournament with a 4-0 victory over Richmond. UNC then defeated rival Duke 4-0 for a trip to the Sweet Sixteen. Playing in just its third Sweet Sixteen, Carolina opened with a 4-0 upset of fourth-ranked Vanderbilt. The Tar Heels finished one win away from the Final Four, falling to Clemson 4-1 in the quarterfinals.

Kalbas served as head coach of William & Mary's women's tennis team for 11 years before accepting the head coaching position at Carolina in the summer of 2003. At William & Mary, Kalbas posted a 214-85 overall record and was named the 1998 ITA National Coach of the Year.

Kalbas' teams have seen great success against ranked opponents. Since 1995 his teams have defeated 20 teams ranked in the Top 10 of the ITA poll, highlighted by a win over No. 2 Florida in 2006. Under Kalbas' direction, 14 of his teams have been ranked in the Top 15 in the country.

Kalbas was a four-time Colonial Athletic Association Women's Tennis Coach of the Year, winning the honor in 1995, 1996, 1999 and 2002. He was recog-

Carolina Women's Tennis Assistant Coach Tari Ann Toro

Kalbas' leadership. Carolijn van Rossum and Jessyca Arthur both won the award while Kalbas was coaching at William & Mary.

At North Carolina, Kalbas has coached some of the top singles players and doubles tandems in the country. This season, Kalbas is coaching perhaps his best doubles pair in Anundsen and Long. The pair entered the fall ranked No. 1 in the country after earning All-America honors in 2006.

Kalbas is a 1989 graduate of the University of Notre Dame, where he was a four-year varsity player, playing at the No. 1 and No. 2 spots in singles. He was captain of the Fighting Irish men's tennis team his senior year and received the most valuable player and sportsmanship awards from Notre Dame. After graduation, Kalbas served as an assistant coach for the Notre Dame men's tennis team from 1989-1992. During his tenure, the Fighting Irish made their way to the Top 20 for the first time in school history, and, in 1992, the Irish reached the NCAA Championship match.

Kalbas and his wife, Suzanne, reside in Chapel Hill with their two children, Sarah, 16, and Joseph, 7.

Tari Ann Toro
Assistant Coach
Fourth Season
William & Mary, 1999

Tari Ann Toro is in her fourth season as assistant coach for the Tar Heel women's tennis team. Over the course of Toro's tenure at UNC, the team has garnered a 69-26 dual match record and made three consecutive trips to the NCAA Tournament, reaching the quarterfinals in 2005.

With Toro as assistant coach, the Tar Heels have had seven All-ACC selections over three seasons, with Jenna Long and Caitlin Collins earning honors in 2006. Aniela Mojzis was an All-America selection in both 2004 and 2005, Kendall Cline also earned All-America honors in 2005 and the doubles tandem of Sara Anundsen and Long earned the accolades in 2006. For her efforts during the 2005-06 season, Toro was named the ITA Southeast Region Assistant Coach of the Year.

A 1999 graduate of the College of William & Mary with a degree in psychology, Toro was a member of the women's tennis team there from 1995 to 1999, playing under the tutelage of current UNC head coach Brian Kalbas. After graduating, Toro was the assistant coach at the University of Miami from 2000 to 2003 and then came to Carolina as an assistant coach in 2003.

At William & Mary, Toro was one of the most decorated players in the Tribe's history. She posted the sixth-best singles record in school history at 111-48 and her doubles record was also one of the best in the program at 96-27 overall. Playing primarily at the No. 1 and No. 2 singles spots and the No. 1 doubles flight her senior year, Toro was named the Colonial Athletic Associate Player of the Year. In 1999, Toro was named not only to the All-CAA team, but was also honored as the Mark H. McCormack Most Valuable Player by her teammates.

Toro was also honored with the William & Mary's President Award, an honor given to the student-athlete who has shown leadership, sportsmanship and excellence throughout their career.

"Tari Ann always strived to improve and was extremely coachable," says head coach Brian Kalbas. "She brings the same dedication as a coach as well as an enormous amount of experience. Combine that with her outstanding work ethic and ability to relate to the players, and we have one of the top assistant coaches in the country."

A native of Puerto Rico, Toro played in the Fed Cup competition the year after graduating from William & Mary. Toro's sister, Mari Michelle, graduated from the University of Miami where she was also a member of the women's tennis team.

2005-06 Season Review Carolina Women's Tennis

After losing seniors Kendall Cline and Aniela Mojzis from the 2004-05 team that advanced to the NCAA quarterfinals, it was difficult to imagine that the University of North Carolina women's tennis could maintain that level of success in 2005-06. But that's exactly what the Tar Heels did.

Behind All-America performers Jenna Long and Sara Anundsen, the Tar Heels advanced to the NCAA Championships for the second straight season and had one of the greatest seasons in school history.

SEASON OPENS WITH SUCCESSFUL FALL

The fall season would prove to be a sign of great things to come for the 2005-06 Tar Heels. Long and Anundsen would make school history by advancing to the doubles final of the ITA National Indoor Championships, defeating the nation's top-ranked team in the process.

The end of the fall would see four Tar Heels ranked among the top 30 in the Southeast Region in singles and three pairs ranked in the top 15 in doubles. Behind the success of a solid fall, Carolina found itself ranked No. 11 in the nation in the first ITA poll.

TAR HEELS WIN TWO AT ITA NATIONAL INDOORS

The spring season began with home wins over Davidson and UNC Greensboro before the Tar Heels hit the road for a win at No. 19 Tennessee. After posting wins at No. 1 singles and doubles, Long was named the ACC Player of the Week. Following two more non-conference wins, Carolina traveled to the ITA National Indoor tournament.

The ITA National Indoors annually features 16 of the nation's best teams, making it an accomplishment just to compete. However the Tar Heels did more than just compete, knocking off two more top-25 opponents in No. 22 BYU and No. 16 TCU. Carolina's only loss was to No. 1-ranked Stanford.

CAROLINA RISES TO THE NATION'S ELITE

After notching another win over a ranked team by defeating No. 33 Texas A&M, UNC put together perhaps the most remarkable four-day run in school history. The weekend started with the Atlantic Coast Conference opener, and the Tar Heels defeated No. 40 NC State, dealing the Wolfpack their first loss of the season.

That was just the beginning, however. Carolina then welcomed No. 6 Northwestern to the Cone-Kenfield Tennis Center. On the strength of wins at Nos. 4-6 singles, including a clinching victory by Meg Fanjoy at No. 6, the Tar Heels defeated their first top-10 opponent of the season.

Just one day later, UNC scored the biggest win in school history by defeated No. 2 Florida. In addition to being the highest-ranked team ever to fall to the Tar Heels, it was Carolina's first-ever win over Florida in six meetings dating back to 1977. As they did in all but two matches in 2006, UNC opened by claiming the doubles point. After getting wins from Anundsen at No. 3 and Fanjoy at No. 6, Caitlin Collins delivered the clinching win at No. 2, upsetting the nation's fifth-ranked player, Diana Srebrovic.

On the heels of that historic week and wins at No. 27 Indiana and Butler the following weekend, Carolina rose to No. 3 in the national poll, the highest ITA ranking in school history.

TAR HEELS THRIVE IN THE ACC

With all 12 teams ranked among the nation's top 75 at some point in the year, the ACC proved to be one of the country's finest tennis leagues in 2006. Carolina moved to 2-0 in the league with a win at No. 61 Florida State before dropping its first ACC match at No. 10 Miami.

The Tar Heels would respond with a five-match winning streak that featured 4-3 wins over No. 17 Wake Forest and No. 37

Maryland and pushed their conference record to 7-1. After a 4-3 setback at No. 14 Duke, Carolina dealt No. 12 Georgia Tech its first conference loss of the season to improve to 8-2.

The Tar Heels entered the final match of the regular season with a shot at a share of the regular-season title with a win over No. 24 Clemson. Carolina swept the three doubles matches to take a 1-0 lead and got a quick win from Long at No. 2 singles to push the lead to 2-0. After Clemson gained a point at No. 1 singles, senior Tanja Markovic, playing in her final home ACC match, pushed the Tar Heels to the brink of victory with a victory at No. 6. Clemson would even the score with wins at No. 3 and No. 5, setting the stage for a dramatic finish at No. 4. Despite a strong effort, Austin Smith fell to Maria Brito in a third-set tiebreaker to give the Tigers the victory.

CAROLINA REACHES ANOTHER SWEET SIXTEEN

Despite falling to Clemson in the ACC quarterfinals, the No. 8 Tar Heels were awarded hosting duties for the first and second rounds of the NCAA Tournament. After disposing of South Carolina State with a 4-0 sweet in the first round, Carolina met ACC rival Wake Forest for a trip to the Sweet Sixteen.

UNC opened up a 1-0 lead with the doubles point, but Wake Forest tied the score with a win at No. 1 singles. Smith and Markovic won in straight sets at No. 4 and No. 6, respectively, to give the Tar Heels a 3-1 advantage. After Demon Deacon wins at No. 5 and No. 2, the match came down to Anundsen and Wake Forest's Ana Jerman at No. 3. Despite fighting leg cramps throughout the match, Anundsen prevailed 6-4 in the third set to send UNC to the Sweet Sixteen.

DOUBLES PAIR MAKES HISTORY AGAIN

After falling to Duke in the Sweet Sixteen, Carolina saw its tennis season extended by the success of Long and Anundsen. The duo was seeded No. 5-8 in the 32-team bracket and opened with a 6-4, 6-4 win over Long Beach State. A 6-2, 7-6 win over Texas A&M sent the pair to the quarterfinals, where the Tar Heels met Gabriela Duch and Neyessa Etienne of South Florida. Long and Anundsen dropped the nation's No. 9 doubles team 6-2, 6-4 to become the first UNC tandem to make the NCAA semifinals. Despite losing to Fresno State in the semifinals, Long and Anundsen earned All-America status for their impressive run.

Carolina Women's Tennis History Carolina Women's Tennis

The women's tennis program has a long-standing tradition of excellence in the overall women's athletics program at the University of North Carolina, beginning with legendary head coach Frances Hogan and continuing into the first decade of the New Millennium highlighted by standout players the likes of Marlene Mejia, Kate Pinchbeck, Kendall Cline, Aniela Mojzis, Sara Anundsen and Jenna Long. Although Hogan was involved at the roots of the program, it has been players of more recent vintage who have kept Carolina in the national spotlight.

Hogan, the former women's athletic director at Carolina, was the guiding force during the game's early years on the Chapel Hill campus. As the first head coach of Tar Heel women's tennis teams since the 1940s, she spurred interest in the sport by instituting North Carolina Women's Tennis Day in 1958, a yearly fixture for collegiate and prep aficionados of the sport around the state. Despite limitations on match play, Hogan was instrumental in ensuring the team played a full schedule. Her tennis team was the first women's sports team at the University to travel out of the state to compete. In 1970, prior to the advent of Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women-sponsored women's tennis at the collegiate level which did not come until 1971, Hogan coached the late Laura DuPont to the United States Lawn Tennis Association's collegiate singles championship. During that same year, Carolina posted a national ranking of sixth place in the USLTA collegiate ratings.

Eight women's sports at North Carolina, including the tennis program, were officially elevated to varsity status in 1971, when Carolina became a charter member of the newly-formed Association For Intercollegiate Athletics For Women. The eight sports as varsity entities were under the supervision of the Physical Education Department until October 1974, when the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics took over supervision of all Carolina varsity sports—men's and women's at UNC.

That fall, Camey Timberlake was awarded the first-ever women's athletic scholarship for any sport at the University. She went on to capture the Atlantic Coast Conference championship at No. 2 singles during the fall of 1977 in the first-ever ACC women's sports championship event of any kind.

After the sport came under the direction of the athletic department, Hogan coached the first two tennis teams to outstanding 13-1 and 13-2 records in 1975 and 1976, respectively. During the 1976 season, Hogan guided the Tar Heels to a No. 16 national ranking and the team won the Southern Collegiates in Columbus, Miss. by defeating Rollins College in the final.

When Hogan retired from coaching in 1976 to concentrate full-time on her senior women's administrator duties, she was replaced by Kitty Harrison, who continued to build the success of the Tar Heel program for over two decades. Eight of Harrison's 21 teams were ranked among the Top 25 nationally. Under Harrison's direction, Carolina won four ACC championships in a row in the 1970s and 1980s and finished as the league runner-up four other times. Harrison retired after the 1997-98 season as the winningest tennis coach in ACC history at the time in terms of dual-match victories.

Carolina was a force to be reckoned with during the days of AIAW competition from 1971 until the organization was disbanded in 1982. The Tar Heels won the NCAIAW Tournament three straight times from 1979 to 1981. In 1982, they avenged a 6-3 loss to Duke in the state tournament by defeating the Blue Devils 7-2 to capture the AIAW Southern Region II title. The Tar Heels earned a bid to the AIAW national tournament three times, finishing 15th in 1979, 11th in 1981 and 17th in 1982.

There were numerous outstanding players during Harrison's tenure, including three first-team All-America selections. Kathy Barton was an AIAW first-team All-America in 1982. Cinda Gurney, a three-time ACC Player of the Year, was an All-America in singles in both 1992 and 1993. Gurney and Alisha Portnoy combined to earn first-team All-America honors in doubles in 1993. As a senior, Gurney advanced to the NCAA championship match without losing a set in any of her five preliminary matches in the field of 64. She completed that year seventh individually in singles in the ITA rankings and achieved the highest rating ever by a Carolina player in singles when she was ranked third nationally in December of 1991.

Former Tar Heel men's tennis standout Roland Thornqvist, an All-America and ACC Player of the Year as a player at UNC, took over the team's coaching duties in 1998 and led UNC to its first ever NCAA Tournament berth and subsequent victory. Thornqvist spent three successful years at the helm of the Tar Heels, finishing with a 42-30 record and Carolina's first three NCAA tournament appearances in 1999, 2000 and 2001. Although only a sophomore in 2001, Marlene Mejia earned ITA All-America honors in singles, helping the Tar Heels earn a Top 20 ranking that season. Following the 2001 season, Thornqvist left Carolina to take over the coaching reigns at Florida.

Five years ago, under coach Jen Callen, the Tar Heels won the ACC Championship, advanced to the quarterfinals of the NCAA Tournament for the first time in school history, finished fifth in the country, its highest ever ranking, and had a sparkling 25-5 record. Pinchbeck earned first-team All-America honors after advancing to the quarterfinals of the NCAA Championships.

In 2003, Brian Kalbas was named head coach. In his first three seasons, the Tar Heels have seen tremendous success. Kalbas has led the Tar Heels to NCAA Tournament appearances in each of his first three years at Carolina including in 2005 when the team matched its best finish in the NCAA Tournament ever, advancing to the quarterfinals. It was only the second time a Carolina team has gone that far in the tournament.

The Tar Heels have produced four All-America selections during Kalbas' tenure. Aniela Mojzis was an individual All-America selection in 2004 and teamed with Kendall Cline to earn All-America honors in doubles last year. Mojzis and Cline also earned national awards from the Intercollegiate Tennis Association in 2005. Cline was awarded the ITA/Cissie Leary Sportsmanship Award and Mojzis received the ITA/Arthur Ashe Award for Leadership and Sportsmanship, marking the first time in ITA history that one school won both awards. In 2006, Sara Anundsen and Jenna Long earned All-America honors as one of the nation's top doubles pairs. The duo began the fall of 2006 as the No. 1-ranked duo in the country.

Over the years, Tar Heel players have won 33 conference titles in singles, including four by Gurney, three by Jennifer Balent and two each by Janet Shands, Margie Brown, Lloyd Hatcher and Gigi Neely. Brown teamed with Betsy Heidenberger for two of her three doubles titles, and the duo of Shands and Betty Baugh Harrison were as tough to beat in the late '70s as Gurney and Portnoy were during the 1992-93 season when they won the ITA Clay Court Doubles Championship, earned a national No. 1 ranking after the fall season and finished the spring season ranked fourth in the country.

Despite playing tough dual-match schedules, Carolina teams continue to win with regularity. Only on six occasions has the Tar Heel women's tennis program suffered a losing season while competing as a varsity sport.

The UNC women's and men's teams celebrate their double victory at the 2002 ACC Championships in Raleigh, N.C. The women's team beat Duke to end the Blue Devils' run of 14 consecutive ACC titles. The men's squad captured its 25th title with a victory over Georgia Tech.

Dick Baddour
Director of Athletics

Dick Baddour, a 1966 graduate of the University of North Carolina, was named Director of Athletics on June 25, 1997. In his eight years as director, the UNC Department of Athletics has undergone a number of changes, yet remains one of the premiere programs in the Atlantic Coast Conference and in the nation.

The Goldsboro, N.C., native heads a program that with 28 varsity sports is the largest in the ACC. Carolina prides itself on a strong overall athletic program and finished ninth in the 2004-05 Director's Cup, a measure of NCAA postseason success. The Tar Heels, inaugural winners of the Cup in 1994, have finished among the top 10 teams nine times in the competition's 12 years.

Baddour is in his 39th year of continuous service to the university. He graduated from UNC in 1966 and was appointed Assistant Dean of Men in 1967. He served as Assistant Dean of Admissions and Assistant Dean of the UNC School of Law and also earned a Master of Arts degree in education prior to joining the athletic department in 1986.

In 2001, he received the Distinguished Service Medal from the UNC General Alumni Association.

Active in Chapel Hill community affairs, he is a past president of the Public School Foundation and has served on the Parks and Recreation Commission. He and his wife, Lynda, have two sons, Allen and David, and a daughter, Jennifer.

Dr. Beth Miller
Sr. Associate Director of Athletics

Beth Miller is in her 21st year supervising North Carolina's highly-successful 26-team Olympic Sports program and serves as UNC's Senior Woman Administrator. She is a 1968 alumna of Appalachian State University with a B.S. degree in health and physical education. She has a master's from ASU and earned a Doctor of Arts degree in physical education at Middle Tennessee State in 1974.

From 1969-72, Miller served as the head volleyball and basketball coach at Appalachian State. She became head volleyball coach at UNC in 1975 and led the Tar Heels to four consecutive ACC titles from 1980-83 and five postseason tournament appearances. She also coached softball at Carolina from 1978-79.

In 1979, Miller was named Athletic Business Manager. She retired from coaching volleyball after 1983, but continued to handle all financial affairs for the department through 1987. She has overseen UNC's Olympic Sports program since 1985.

Miller currently serves on a number of Atlantic Coast Conference committees, including those for women's basketball, women's golf and volleyball. She chairs the Awards Committee and is a member of the Committee on Equity. She also serves on UNC's Housing Advisory Board.

Miller is a native of Landis, N.C.

Department of Athletics Mission Statement

The Department of Athletics has offered high quality athletic programs for many years. Through a dedicated commitment to educational interests, competitive athletic programs, and integrity in all areas, the student-athletes, coaches and staff strive to bring credit and recognition to the University.

The mission of the Department is to sponsor a broad-based athletic program that provides educational and athletic opportunities for young men and women to grow and develop, and to serve the interests of the University by complementing and enhancing its diversity and quality of life. Coaches, as educators, are foundational to this process. In keeping with the University's efforts to offer programs of regional and national acclaim, the Department's athletic programs strive for competitive excellence within the Atlantic Coast Conference or other similar institutions. Through its athletic programs, the University seeks to unite students, faculty, staff and alumni in a common and shared experience. The Department seeks to contribute to the diversity of the University by offering opportunities for enhanced racial/ethnic, cultural and geographic representation.

To fulfill this mission, the Department, with the approval of the Board of Trust, has developed principles of operation to provide guidance and direction to its personnel. This Mission Statement and accompanying principles require strong dedication and commitment from all who participate in, coach in and support the Department of Athletics.

Department of Athletics Statement on Gambling

The mission of the Department of Athletics is to sponsor a broad-based athletic program that provides educational and athletic opportunities for young men and women to grow and develop. In keeping with the Department's mission and the University's commitment to educational interests, competitive athletic programs, and integrity in all areas, the Department of Athletics strongly condemns the influence of gambling on intercollegiate athletics.

Student gambling is a significant issue on college campuses. Student-athlete involvement in gambling has produced many tragic situations, both for student-athletes and the universities they represent. Student-athletes often compete in contests that generate interest from those involved in gambling and, possibly, organized crime. If given the opportunity, those interests will not hesitate to exploit the position student-athletes hold on college campuses. As such, the University of North Carolina is firmly opposed to all forms of gambling and bribery related to intercollegiate athletics.

To fulfill its educational obligation, the Department provides a gambling education program to all its student-athletes and departmental staff members. This statement and the educational program are reflections of the Department's commitment to keeping intercollegiate athletics free from the influences of gambling and its related activities.

The Department requires its staff members and student-athletes to adhere to NCAA, state and federal laws regarding gambling. In the interest of fair competition and the growth and development of student-athletes, the Department strongly urges its friends and supporters to refrain from gambling/betting on contests involving collegiate competition and to abide by state and federal laws.

CONE-KENFIELD TENNIS CENTER

The Cone-Kenfield Tennis Center, which is home to both the women's and men's tennis teams, was dedicated in September 1992 in keeping with the University of North Carolina's tradition of offering quality facilities for its student-athletes. The indoor/outdoor facility is adjacent to the A.E. Finley Golf Course on N.C. Highway 54 in Chapel Hill.

The facility is named for Ceasar Cone, II, a 1928 alumnus of the University who played tennis at Carolina and was a great benefactor of the school. The center also bears the name of John Kenfield, the legendary Tar Heel men's tennis coach who had a sterling record of 434-30-2 from 1928-55. Kenfield's teams won 15 Southern Conference and two Atlantic Coast Conference team championships during his tenure. He coached the likes of Bitsy Grant, Wilmer Hines and Vic Seixas at UNC, and his 1948 team finished third in the country. Kenfield was Carolina's first-ever tennis coach, and he took over the reins of the UNC team in time to coach Cone in his senior season in 1928.

The $2 million complex includes:

- ◆ Six indoor and 12 outdoor, lighted hard surface tennis courts
- ◆ Spectator viewing on the upper level of the indoor center
- ◆ Men's and women's varsity dressing facilities
- ◆ Public and visitor dressing facilities
- ◆ Fully-equipped weight-training rooms for both varsity teams

In 1994, a memorabilia area was created on the upper level of the center core of the center. The brainchild of Director of Tennis and men's tennis head coach Sam Paul, the memorabilia area was the work of Dave Lohse of the UNC Athletic Communications office and graphic designer Clay Carmichael of Carrboro, N.C.

Another recent addition was an electronic scoreboard for the outdoor courts, along with additional stadium seating.

The Cone-Kenfield Tennis Center has hosted NCAA Tournament play each of the last five years.

STRENGTH AND CONDITIONING

Under the direction of Steve Gisselman, the women's tennis team uses modern strength, flexibility and condition methods in a year-round cycle. Gisselman is in his sixth year as a strength and conditioning coach for UNC's athletic program and his first as Assistant Director of Strength and Conditioning for Olympic Sports. He assists the Director of Strength and Conditioning for Olympic Sports, Greg Gatz, in the daily operation of the Olympic Sport weight room. His primary responsibilities include developing and implementing strength and conditioning programs for field hockey, women's lacrosse, softball, women's tennis, women's golf, men's golf, diving and the multi-event athletes in track and field.

Gisselman has been working with the women's tennis team for over three years. In that time, he has modified and enhanced the strength and conditioning program based on the team's athletic needs. The primary focus of his program is to maintain a team that is injury resistant, focusing on preventing a majority of the overuse injuries common to the sport of tennis. Enhancing each athlete's performance on the court is another primary objective of Gisselman's training plan. All of the athletic traits inherent to tennis, and sport in general, are targeted by his strength and conditioning program. Speed, agility, functional strength, and court specific power are a few of the athletic components Gisselman focuses on when designing his programs for the team.

MEDICAL CARE

The Tar Heels receive excellent care from one of the country's best sports medicine staff. Dr. Tim Taft, Director of Sports Medicine, oversees a comprehensive program designed to keep student-athletes healthy and to rehabilitate any injuries quickly and successfully. Dr. Tom Brickner is the physician who works directly with the women's tennis team.

A member of the athletic training staff is present at all matches and practices to ensure that any injuries receive prompt and proper care. Head certified athletic trainer Sally Mays oversees care for the women's tennis team and is assisted by certified athletic training graduate students.

CAMPUS AND COMMUNITY INVOLVEMENT

UNC women's tennis players participate in all areas of campus life, including community service and honor societies. The team is heavily involved with the Student Athletic Advisory Council and the Christmas Adopt-a-Family program.

ACADEMIC SUPPORT PROGRAM

The Academic Support Program is the main service utilized in advancing UNC student-athletes to graduation. The program assists student-athletes in exploring their interests and abilities, enjoying a broad educational experience, and reaching or exceeding their academic goals. "Our young people are students first and athletes second and that will always be the case at the University," says UNC Director of Athletics Dick Baddour. "That is a credit to our coaches, administrators and support staff, but most of all, our student-athletes. Their accomplishments in the classroom are very impressive."

During the 2005-06 academic year, 275 Carolina student-athletes made the ACC Academic Honor Roll, which requires a cumulative GPA of at least 3.0 for the year.

The Academic Support Program is housed primarily in the Pope Academic Support Center, which is equipped with study facilities, tutorial rooms, a computer lab, a 128-seat auditorium, counselors' offices, and state-of-the-art video and computer equipment. At the center, students meet with staff to discuss course selection, major and career exploration, academic progress and academic eligibility.

The Academic Support Program helps freshmen transition from high school to college through a variety of academic programs such as academic counseling, individual tutoring, group review sessions and supplemental instruction.

A member of each team serves as the Academic Team Captain, providing a strong link between the Academic Support Program and the other student-athletes on the squad. The Academic Team Captain for women's tennis for 2006-07 is Sara Anundsen.

CAROLINA LEADERSHIP ACADEMY

Beginning in 2004, UNC student-athletes have participated in the Carolina Leadership Academy, which will develop, challenge and support student-athletes, coaches and staff in their quest to become world-class leaders in academics, athletics and life.

The Academy will consist of three programs:

• CREED PROGRAM

Leadership training begins in the freshman year. All leadership begins with personal leadership, therefore freshmen are taught skills to effectively lead themselves. Training consists of monthly meetings featuring keynote speakers and small group discussion. Upperclass student-athletes serve as peer mentors and discussion leaders. Special focus is on responsibility, accountability, making good choices, ethics and character building.

• RISING STARS LEADERS PROGRAM

Designed for a select group of "high potential" sophomores and juniors, this program provides future leaders with insights, strategies and skills necessary to become effective leaders. The program includes monthly meetings, interactive exercises and action learning experiences, emphasizing leading by example.

• VETERAN LEADERS

Designed for team captains and veteran student-athletes, this program provides advanced leadership training and support and teaches the critical skills and insights necessary to be effective vocal leaders. In providing a strong peer network, student-athletes meet regularly to learn and reinforce leadership principles and share successes, frustrations and lessons.

- The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill was the nation's first state university to open its doors and the only public university to award degrees in the 18th century. Authorized by the N.C. Constitution in 1776, the university was chartered by the N.C. General Assembly Dec. 11, 1789, the same year George Washington first was inaugurated as president. The cornerstone was laid for Old East, the nation's first state university building, Oct. 12, 1793. Hinton James, the first student, arrived from Wilmington, N.C., Feb. 12, 1795.

- The 729-acre central campus includes the two oldest state university buildings, Old East and Person Hall. Old East and Playmakers Theatre, an 1852 Greek-revival building, are National Historic Landmarks. Today, the campus is undergoing an unprecedented physical transformation made possible in part by North Carolinians' overwhelming approval of the $3.1 billion bond referendum for higher education.

- Recently completed projects include the renovation of Memorial Hall, which anchors the university's planned arts common and is now a comfortable, elegant venue for the performing arts; the Rams Head Center, a linchpin in the campus master plan that combines a 700-space parking deck, dining and student recreation facilities, and innovative sustainability practices; and the renovated Health Sciences Library, which features 140 computer workstations and technology that will encourage collaboration among scientists and educators in Chapel Hill and beyond.

- UNC anchors one corner of the famed Research Triangle Park, which has played a vital role in nurturing the economic development of North Carolina.

AT THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

Several national publications regularly publish rankings that listed Carolina prominently in categories ranging from academic quality to affordability to diversity to public service to international presence. Recent highlights include:

- 5th best public university in U.S. News & World Report's annual "Best Colleges" guidebook.

- 1st among the 100 best public colleges combining great academics and affordable tuitions as ranked by Kiplinger's Personal Finance. Carolina has been first four consecutive times.

- A "best value" among 81 schools chosen for "America's Best Value Colleges, 2006 Edition" by The Princeton Review/Random House for outstanding academics, relatively low costs, and generous financial aid packages. Carolina has appeared in this publication two years in a row.

- "Hottest" for health careers, according to the Kaplan/Newsweek 2005 "How to Get into College" guide, based on admissions trends and interviews with a broad array of educators, admissions officers, students and other longtime observers of the admissions process.

- 1st for the top entrepreneurial campus and 5th "most connected," according to The Princeton Review and Forbes.com.

- 1st among public research universities, for the second consecutive year, recording the highest rate of undergraduates studying abroad in 2002-2003; 7th among all research universities for the total number of undergraduates going abroad, according to an annual report published by the Institute of International Education.

- 14th among top U.S. colleges and universities for the number of alumni volunteering to serve in the Peace Corps in 2004. Currently, 60 Chapel Hill graduates are representing the United States abroad by serving people who live in the developing world as Peace Corps volunteers.

- 14th – the highest ranking for any major public research university – in the 2004 "Black Enterprise-DayStar Top 50 Colleges and Universities for African Americans" list. This ranking was based on responses to questions about which schools were both a good academic and social fit for African-Americans.

- Among the 20 very "best buy" public universities in the U.S. and Canada as judged by the 2005 Fiske Guide to Colleges based on the quality of the academic programs in relation to the cost of attendance.

- Kenan-Flagler Business School (pictured below) has appeared in several best MBA program lists. They included Business Week, 16th; Forbes, 8th for return on investment to graduates; The Wall Street Journal, 11th based on a survey of corporate recruiters; The Financial Times, 7th; and Hispanic Business, 5th, among top business schools for Hispanics. The school's international executive education program was ranked 17th overall by The Financial Times. The school was also included in a new Princeton Review book, "Best 143 Business Schools."

- Degree programs or specialty areas from the schools of business, education, law, medicine, pharmacy, public health as well as the College of Arts and Sciences appeared prominently in the Spring 2005 edition of U.S. News & World Report's "American's Best Graduate Schools" issue.
